Woman charged with boating under influence

A 59-year-old woman was charged with boating under the influence of alcohol Saturday evening at Harveys Lake, according to the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

Maria Rist of Lynnwood was stopped at 7 p.m. in the center of the lake near Point Breeze after she was observed towing a water skier without an observer on board the boat.

She failed a field sobriety test and was taken to Wilkes-Barre General Hospital where her blood alcohol level was tested at .19 percent, according to Kerry Messerle, Region Manager of the Fish Commission. A blood alcohol level of .10 percent is legally intoxicated in Pennsylvania.

The prosecuting officers are Deputy Water Conservation Officer Diane Grimes, assisted by deputy officer Paul Grimes, and Water Conservation Officer Claude Neifert.

Boating under the influence is punishable with a $250 to $5,000 fine, or imprisonment for up to 90 days, or both, said Messerle.

Conviction of boating under the influence also means automatic suspension of the privilege of operating a power boat for one year.

Rist was also charged with towing a skier without having an observer on board. Both charges will be filed with District Justice Earl Gregory of Shavertown.

Sabol elected to head state police chiefs' group

Kingston Township Police Chief Paul Sabol became President of the Pennsylvania Police Chiefs Association on July 24 at the association's banquet in Lancaster.

Sabol, police chief in Kingston Township since 1972, was a member of the association's executive board for five years, and became 4th vice president four years ago.

Each year since, he moved up one step as vice president, and won a vote of approval to become president of the 1,100 member organization this year.

"I'm very proud and pleased to be president," said Sabol. "I'm following chiefs that had 90-man and 100-man departments. I have an eight-man department."

One of the goals of the Police Chiefs Association is to lobby in Harrisburg for laws which will help police do their job.

Sabol became a police officer in January of 1963. Later, he was elected Constable for a time, after Earl Gregory, now a District Justice, became a Justice of the Peace.

Sabol, a Luzerne native, is married to the former Ferne Howells of Kingston Township. They have a son, Paul, of Trucksville, a daughter, Pamela Harsha, of Bloomsburg, and five grandchildren.

dents of the area near the beach, according to Gloria Bilder, the committee's co-chairperson. As of the end of July, she said that they had about 150 signatures of people who would be interested in joining the association with a family membership fee of about $100 a year.

Bilder said that one of the reasons the Beach Association could not afford to install restrooms and pay liability insurance was that membership was closed in 1981, and the 68 members only paid $5 in dues a year.

John McKeown, chairman of the beach association's board of directors, had no comment yet on the future of the beach.

Mystery Solved

There is no mystery about drycleaning. Drycleaning is simply the use of solvents to remove soil and stains from fabrics. It is called "drycleaning" because the solvents contain little or no water and do not penetrate the fibers as water does. Drycleaning solvents are fluids that actually dissolve greases and oils and remove them from the garment. Water by itself cannot do this. Natural fibers such as wools and silks can shrink, distort, and lose color when washed in water, but will dryclean beautifully. Synthetic fibers such as polyesters also respond well to drycleaning. These fibers can retain oily stains after washing, but drycleaning will remove such stains. A drycleaning machine looks much like a very large front loading home washer. It produces similar mechanical action to loosen embedded dirt. At the same time the solvent is filtered continuously to insure its clarity. Trust your IFI professional drycleaner to handle your fabrics with special care.

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

POLYCARBONATE LENS PROTECTION

A great boon to sports enthusiasts (and other eyeglass wearers, especially the young, rough-and-tumble set) are the new polycarbonate materials. Back in the 50's and 60's, most lenses were made of glass. Then plastic became popular because it was lighter. However, polycarbonate is even lighter than plastic. As a matter of fact, it is 50% lighter than plastic and 20% thinner for the same correction. That means more comfort and style. In addition, it's a better ultraviolet (UV) protector and provides much greater impact resistance. For this reason, it is the preferred lens for people who engage in athletics. Polycarbonate frames are also preferred. If you regularly participate in sports that involve a projectile, such as racquetball, baseball or tennis, ask your optometrist about polycarbonate lenses and frames. Polycarbonate lenses come in clear or any of the multitude of tints available. They're worth the investment.
