Drought devastates wildlife

Luzerne County: The summer of 1991 will most likely be one of the driest on record. A drought can have devastating effects on wildlife. During the month of July I have noticed numerous beavers killed on the highways where creeks flow under or near a road and I had an increase of beaver complaints from people living in lakefront properties. It seems that many beavers were have a rough time surviving the low water conditions and were seeking deeper streams and lakes. Native brook trout and stocked trout were dying in some locations, and even the hardy bullheads succumbed to high water temperatures in shallow pools that were once deep ponds and lakes. - WCO Edward J. Zindell, Wilkes-Barre.

Annual Back-to-School Checkups

Vision screenings at school detect only 20 to 30 percent of eye problems in children.

Because of rapid growth and subsequent vision changes, school age children should have thorough eye examinations each year. Undiagnosed eye problems can cause learning difficulties.
