Haunted barn full of thrills and chills

For centuries people have been fascinated with ghosts and goblins and our generation is no exception. It seems that even in a small town like Lehman, Pennsylvania in 1991 the people of the town believe they have a haunted barn!

For the last eight years, the students of the Lehman United Methodist Youth Fellowship and their parents and friends have pounded, banged, sawed, nailed and even yelled to make this seemingly haunted barn safe for people in the community. Despite all of this effort, the barn has continued to grow more haunted! In fact, over the summer of 1989, a third floor grew inside. In 1990 new walls and roofs erupted. And now in 1991 a new set of 13 steps has reared forth from this uncontrollable monster!

If you would like to help the Lehman U.M.Y.F. and the Lehman Volunteer Fire Company, which had to be called out to help in this ninth season of haunting, please report behind the Lehman Post Office on Oct. 18, 19, 20 and Oct. 25 through 30. Visiting hours are from 7-10 p.m. on school nights and 7-11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays. A nominal cost of $3.00 covers your beneficiary papers in the event that you never return!

Call the Lehman spook line: (717) 675-1216 for further updates on the Lehman haunted barn ghost busting.

They are the parents of Mrs. Edward (Evelyn) Petroski, Loy-alville; Linda McLaughlin, Harveys Lake; Lloyd Jr., Kunkle and Mrs. Paul (Karen) Clemow, Ventura, California. They also have 11 grandchildren: Jeanette Sayre, Donna Shaw, Brad and Jeff Petroski; Bob Chris, Amy McLaughlin and Kim Cool; Jennifer Jennings and Paul and Eric Clemow and six great-grandchildren. Jesse and Justine Sayre, Lindsey and Christy Shaw; T.J. Cool and Mary Petroski.

An open house will be held in their honor in the Idetown United Methodist Church House, Saturday, Oct. 26, from 2-5 p.m.

Hey kids! Halloween parade is this Sunday

Is your Halloween costume really pretty? Ugly? Funny? Or maybe you and some friends have costumes that go together. If you want to show off your costume, have some fun and maybe win a prize, don't miss the Halloween Parade Sunday, October 27.

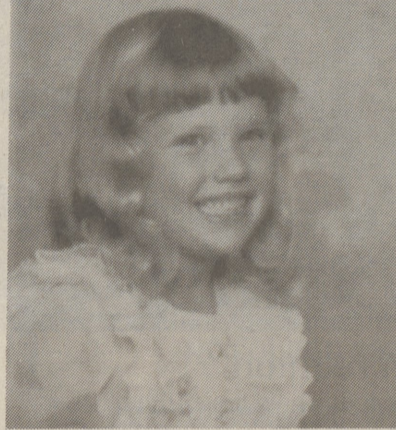

This year's parade will begin at 12:00 Noon on Sunday in the parking lot of the old Dallas Township School on Church Street (Next to the Little League field). Judging will begin at 12:30, followed by the parade to the Eastern Star building behind Acme Market where prizes will be awarded.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the top five winners in these categories: Most Original, Funniest, Best Group, Prettiest, Ugliest. All participants will receive a goodie bag of treats.

The Halloween Parade is sponsored by the Dallas Kiwanis Club. Judging will be done by members of the club, the Women of Kiwanis and Circle K members from Penn State Wilkes-Barre. In the event of rain, the parade will be held indoors at the Dallas Elementary School on Hildebrandt Road.
