Lettermen will lead Lehman

By FLORENCE FINN
Sports Correspondent

Lake-Lehman's boys basketball team, headed by Rodger Bearde, will return four lettermen to its squad this season. It will rely on senior playmaker Jeff Hynick to get the ball to juniors Rich Davis and Dave Clancy, forwards. Mark Shisson, the fourth senior letter winner from last year, is expected to be a solid inside rebounder and defensive player.

"We'll look to Davis and Clancy for the scoring, while Mark has been looking very good defensively and rebounding," coach Bearde commented.

To add to the nucleus, the team has some depth from last year's starters, senior Scott Schobert, juniors Chris Ziomek, and Will Verbyla. "Substitute roles are still wide open," Bearde added. Sophomores Will Woronko, Dave Fosko and Mike Petruska will be pressuring for those positions. Freshmen Tim Waslick and Tim Brislin will add to that competition.

With some veterans among the starting five and some height, Lake-Lehman will be looking to improve last year's win column of only seven games. Traditionally the Knights have been slow starters coming alive during the second half of the league. This year will probably be the same.

"We're small at Lake-Lehman, so we have a lot of players in other sports," Bearde said. "Many of our players play three sports, therefore, they can't devote the necessary time during the off season to one sport." Additionally players come in late from other sports.

G.A.R. remains the team to beat along with Wyoming Seminary with the same team as last year returning. Northwest, with its 6'8" center, should also be a contender, while Bishop Hoban is a traditional competitor.

Small or not, Lake-Lehman will beat its share of teams and maybe even upset a few. The Knights open on December 7 at home against Bishop Hoban.

Returning seniors will pace Dallas men's basketball team

By FLORENCE FINN
Sports Correspondent

Paul Brown's hopes for a winning season for the Dallas men's basketball team will rely on seniors Mark Medura and Jeremiah Van Orden and junior Dave Puz. "Mark has a lot of experience and will most likely be the floor general who will take control," Brown said.

Van Orden will be sidelined until December due to a football injury while Puz is working hard and ready to go. These three lettermen will provide the experience for the Mountaineers.

The remainder of the starting five will include Todd Paczewski, who was a substitute last year, while point guard may be handled by Mike Wagner. One of the positive factors for the Mounts is their depth. Junior Jim Moran, at 6'2" will provide some height along with 6'4" sophomore Charlie Siglin. Two other sophomores, Brian Brady and Brian Ford will provide some depth in the ball handling area. Junior Dave Fisher and senior Lance Wega will give Dallas additional experience.

Last year's District runners-up will inherit a winning attitude from a 22-6 record. "I feel confident with about eight or nine players at anytime," coach Brown commented. "We're small, but we're quick. If we can be effective defensively, we'll be in the game. Our two goals right now are to improve defenses and rebounding."

This will be the key to Dallas's success. They will be looking to maintain their tradition of competitive basketball and will provide obstacles for a lot of teams in the Wyoming Valley Conference.

Lori Warneka named All-American

By FLORENCE FINN
Sports Correspondent

Lori Warneka, a Dallas field hockey standout, has been named to the National All-American first team according to her former high school coach Robyn Jones. Warneka, a senior star at Temple University, was instrumental in the Owl's Atlantic Ten championship this year and their sixth place national ranking.

National All-Americans are chosen from four regional All-American Teams from the United States and consist of the premium field hockey players of the nation. During her sophomore year at Temple, Warneka made honorable mention regional All-American followed by First Team regional All-American in both her senior and junior years.

"I was hoping that I would make it this year" Warneka said. Coach Madison at Temple had said that I had had a good season and that it would be close." Madison had expressed some concern because Lori was not a scorer and could have been overlooked.

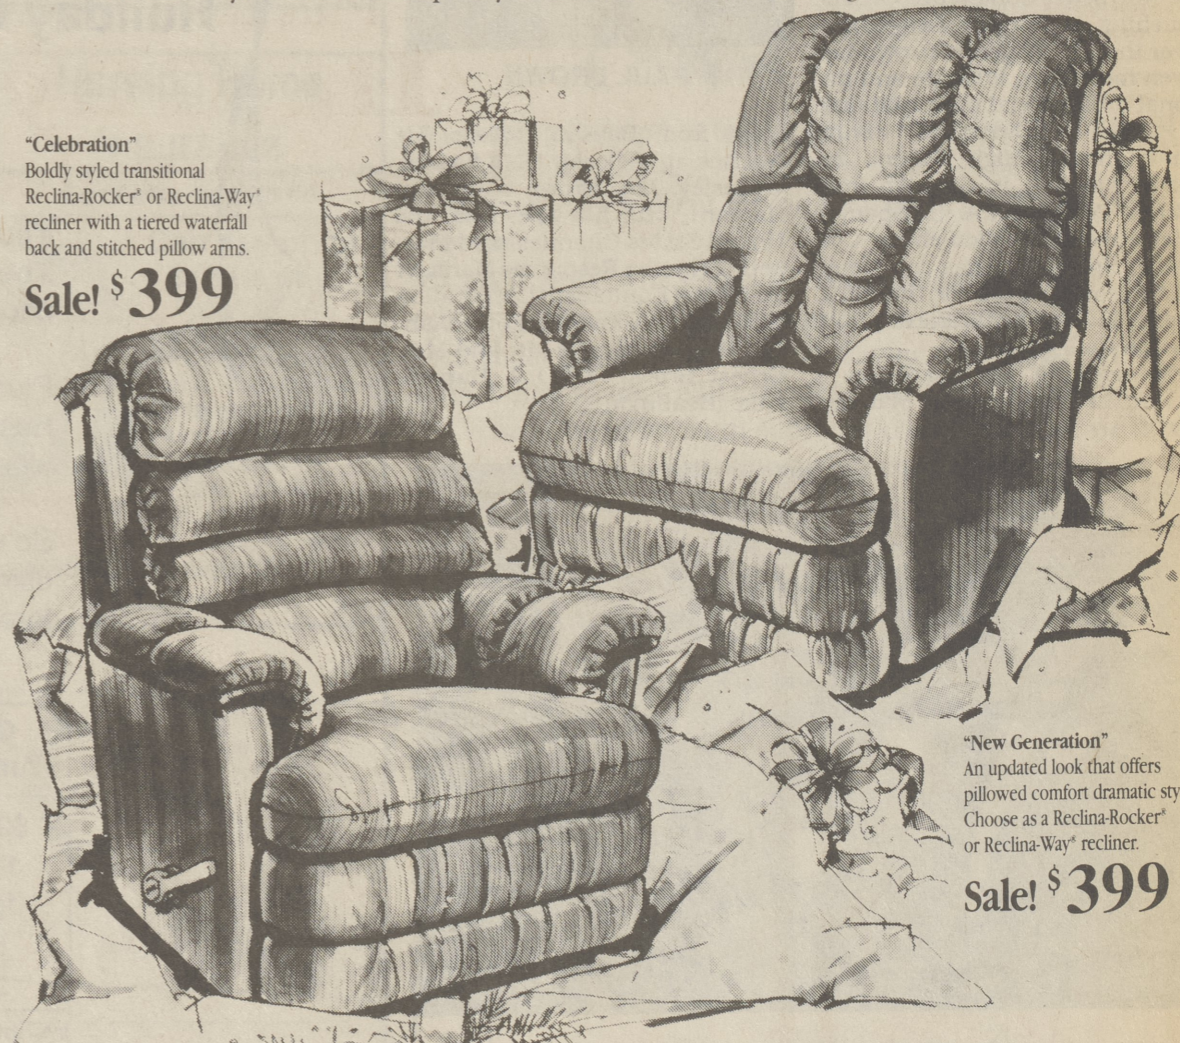

But she wasn't and her accomplishment caps a list of hockey achievements. During her four varsity years at Dallas, Warneka was All-Scholastic honorable mention as a freshman; first team all-scholastic as a sophomore; MVP as a junior; and all-scholastic as a senior. Last year she was one of the 18 chosen for the United States Field hockey team which was cut to 16.

Lori will be trying out again in January to be one of those fortunate to represent her country in international competition.
