Host families sought for exchange students

Have you ever considered the priceless learning experience of hosting a cultural exchange student and how it could benefit your family? Envision the cultural enlightenment that would evolve amongst your family members by sharing your home with a 15 to 18-year old high school student from countries like Argentina, Belgium, Denmark, Hong Kong or Mexico, only to mention a few.

In turn, imagine the gratitude of a family who has entrusted the care of their child to you for a whole school year or semester. No words can describe or measure the gratitude of that family. If you host a student and then decide that you or a member of your family would like to visit the homeland of your students, be rest assured that you will discover a lifetime friendship and will receive a royal welcome from that family.

The YES program will include medical accidental insurance, transportation, and school enrollment at your local high school. These high achieving students will bring their own spending money and personal items. The host family is responsible for providing love, understanding, and a caring home.

Plus, being able to host a student has the benefit to deduct $50.00 per each month you have one of the students with you. For more detailed information contact: The nonprofit Youth Exchange Service (YES), 4675 MacArthur Court, Suite 830, Newport Beach, California, 92660, or call 1-800-848-2121.

Penn State honors retiring faculty

Retired faculty of Penn State Wilkes-Barre were honored recently at a special reception held for them at the campus.

William A. Pearman, Ph.D., campus executive officer, and the faculty, hosted the event. "Our retired faculty are our link to our past and our future. During the 75th Anniversary of the campus, it seemed appropriate to honor the people who gave so much to this University and have made this anniversary year possible," said Pearman.

Penn State campus to hold financial aid seminar

Are you wondering about how to pay for college? Penn State Wilkes-Barre is holding a Financial Aid Night on January 8, 1992, at 6:30 p.m. at the Fortinsky Auditorium in the Center for Technology. Whether you will be attending the Wilkes-Barre campus or not, you can obtain some helpful information from the Coordinator of Financial Aid, Vera Cornish.

"More than 80 percent of all Penn State students receive some form of financial aid while in school," stated Cornish. Scholarships, work-study, aids, grants and special funding programs such as the Educational Opportunity Program and the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant are just a few of the many different ways students can finance their education. Also, aid is available for adult students.

"If you are a student with a B average or better, you may be eligible for a Campus Advisory Board scholarship. Last year, 51 students received scholarships from this fund, totaling over $50,000," Ms. Cornish said.

For students of low-income families there is aid available through the Educational Opportunity Program (EOP). The program offers special admissions and financial aid consideration to students who are Pennsylvania residents and who have middle range academic records and SAT scores.

Representatives from Student Services, Admissions, Housing and Advising will be available to answer any additional questions about Penn State Wilkes-Barre. The Financial Aid program is open to persons thinking about college now or anytime in the future.

A special evening registration will also be held on January 9 from 5 to 8 p.m. in Hayfield House on the Campus in Lehman.

More information can be obtained by calling Vera Cornish in the Financial Aid office at 676-9242.

Wilkes will hold an open house for future engineers

The Wilkes University Department of Engineering will host two open house events on January 9 and January 14 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in room 101 of the Stark Learning Center. Focusing on the evening studies program, faculty will be on hand to discuss the six undergraduate degree programs offered in engineering.

"These open house events will give the University an opportunity to show that our evening programs is a solid path for non-traditional students to take toward an engineering degree," commented Dr. Umid R. Nejb, Dean of the School of Science and Engineering.

Wilkes is the only University in Northeastern Pennsylvania that offers a complete four-year engineering degree program.

The degrees available include: Applied & Engineering Sciences; Electrical Engineering; Engineering Management; Environment Engineering; Materials Engineering; and Mechanical Engineering. Students may choose to concentrate within these programs, in bio-engineering, computer engineering, electronic materials, microelectronics, microwave and antenna systems, or telecommunications.

Staff members from the Office of Evening, Summer and Weekend Programs will be available to assist students with admissions, transfer and registration. For more information contact the Wilkes University Office of Evening, Summer and Weekend Programs, at 824-4651 ext. 4235.
