Paintings by Jones and Koons on display at United Penn Bank

Two former area artists from Huntsville and Kingston are currently displaying their paintings at the United Penn Bank, Main Street, Dallas through the month of April. Margaret Tribler Jones, a former secretary and Huntsville resident began painting after a serious illness, feeling that if she was ever going to begin to paint, it was time. Her paintings depict bird and human portraits, clipper ships, florals and still lifes with a sense of history and tradition.

Lois Bridle Koons is a former Kingston resident. Koons' work shows her love of fine detail, precision, and the history she finds in the area around her restored farmhouse in Montrose.

The two-woman exhibit of art works will continue through April 30 and may be viewed in the lobby of the Dallas branch of the United Penn Bank during regular banking hours.
