

911

chief dispatcher for the Back Mountain Communications Center suggests you remember to give the following information:

1. The nature of the emergency
2. The municipality you live in. This is not the same as you mailing address. For example, many people have Shavertown mailing addresses, but live in Jackson Township. Tell the dispatcher Jackson Township. In other cases, residents of Harveys Lake may have Dallas mailing addresses and should tell the dispatcher they live in Harveys Lake.
3. The street you live on.
4. Your house number.
5. Other information which can help emergency personnel find you, such as a nearby landmark.

One of the biggest problems that emergency personnel sometimes have in the Back Mountain is finding the location of the emergency.

Many homes in the area, a mix of rural and suburban communities, aren't numbered, making it more difficult to find the home where help is needed, particularly at night.

You can help by displaying you house number prominently, and lighting it at night.
