Bloomsburg Theatre Ensemble actors show Lehman students tricks of the trade

By CHUCK FINN
Student Correspondent

Recently two actors Leigh Strimbeck and Elizabeth Dowd from The Bloomsburg Theatre Ensemble attended Lake Lehman High School as part of a five-day Artist-In-Residence program. Strimbeck and Dowd worked with selected classes, exploring with the students the fields of acting, drama, and theatre. The two actors spoke about some of their experiences in the theatre field and introduced some theatre games that they use as practice before a performance.

When asked what kind of impact the actors had on her, Junior Christina Conrad said, "They showed us another aspect of theatre that isn't presented in the classroom."

The actors came before Lake Lehman's production of Robin Hood and gave some of the actors in the play a few tricks of the trade. One of the actors that took part in the play, Tiffany Klimovich said, "The Artists in Residence helped build up our energy and made the flow of the play a lot smoother."
