

HL residents asked to return missing 'No Wake' buoys

Harveys Lake residents who may have found loose "No Wake" buoys and taken them home are asked to put them on their docks so they can be put back in their proper locations.

According to David Abod, the contractor who places the buoys in the water for the Harveys Lake Protective Association, about 100 buoys are missing. The buoys are the property of the Protective Association, which has a blanket insurance policy to cover liability, and a blanket permit from the Fish Commission to place them in the water, Abod said.

Since the buoys all are numbered, they each have an assigned place on the lake.

"We just want to get them to their rightful owner so we can put them to use," said Abod.

DAMA is honored for recycling used motor oil

The Dallas Area Municipal Authority, (D.A.M.A.), has been singled out by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Energy Center and the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania for its innovative oil collection and recycling program.

The Annual Energy Conservation Award was made recently by Development Council Executive Director, Howard Grossman, and Len Carlin, Regional Planner. Accepting on behalf of D.A.M.A. was Executive Director, Tom Bagley and Larry Spaciano, Coordinator of D.A.M.A. recycling programs.

The award is presented annually to those Northeastern Pennsylvanians who through planning, dedication or ingenuity, have implemented or contributed toward effective energy conservation."

The used motor oil recycling program D.A.M.A. implemented in December of 1991 uses a number of designated service stations throughout the Back Mountain. Area residents can bring their used motor oil to any designated location where it is received and added to recycling process.

The D.A.M.A. motor oil recycling program is one of the first in Eastern Pennsylvania. D.A.M.A. also serves as the solid waste recycling administrator for the Back Mountain municipalities of Dallas Borough, Dallas and Kingston Townships serving some 6,500 homeowners.

A third D.A.M.A. recycling program with Interstate Batteries which collects used vehicle batteries is also under way. D.A.M.A. has recently participated in oil recycling seminars in Pittston and Allentown.

Dallas Borough

POLICE MAKE FOUR D.U.I. ARRESTS

Dallas Borough police arrested four people for driving while under the influence, after failing field sobriety and blood alcohol tests.

Peter Gerard Perlis, 33, of Larksville, was arrested after police observed him driving in an erratic manner south on Route 309. Police said that his blood alcohol level was .29%, nearly three times the legal limit. Patrolman William Norris investigated the incident.

Rosann Krakowski, 37, of Wilkes-Barre, was arrested after police observed her driving on Main Street, Dallas, in an erratic manner. Patrolman William Norris, assisted by Dallas Township Patrolman Wayman Miers, investigated the incident.

Joseph Peter Czech, 18, of Lee Park Ave., Wilkes-Barre, was arrested after police observed him driving south on Route 415 at a high rate of speed. Police also cited Czech for using the center turning lane to pass another vehicle in a no passing zone, driving at an unsafe speed and driving while his operator's license is suspended. Patrolman Mike Krzywicki investigated the incident.

Edmond C. Olivieri, 25, of Old Forge, was arrested after police observed him driving at a high rate of speed on Route 309. Police also cited Olivieri for driving at an unsafe speed, careless driving and involuntary damage to unattended property after he struck a PennDOT sign near the intersection of Routes 309 and 415 with his car and left the scene.

Patrolman Mike Krzywicki, assisted by Dallas Township Patrolman Robert Jolley, investigated the accident.

State Rep. Phyllis Mundy supports welfare reform bill

State Rep. Phyllis Mundy, D-Kingston has co-sponsored a legislative package to reform the public welfare system.

The four separate pieces of legislation focus on redirecting funding to successful programs, controlling costs associated with transient welfare recipients and placing economic incentives for individuals to get off welfare.

"This four-bill package focuses on education and preventative health care for children. By creating avenues to better bridge the gap between welfare and self-sufficiency, we will be helping more people who use the system as a short-term, temporary existence and sorting out those who misuse and abuse the welfare system," Mundy said.

One measure in the package allows welfare recipients who find employment to receive a Blue Medical Card for a maximum period of one year or until the new worker receives health benefits. This would encourage people to make the transition from welfare to the workforce without worrying about health insurance which is often not provided by employers in low-wage jobs.

"With the escalating costs of health care, it's hard to entice people on welfare to go to work for a minimum wage job without any medical coverage. Even people who have never been on welfare evaluate the health benefits before accepting the position," Mundy said.

The second proposal will provide incentives and rewards to parents who make sure their children are enrolled and attend school and receive periodic primary health care. This measure is similar to recent Maryland legislation.

Under the third proposal, the maximum welfare benefit a new Pennsylvania resident could receive for the first six months of residency would be the lower of either the benefit amount allowed by the previous state of residence or the calculated Pennsylvania benefit.

The last bill will distribute 25 percent of monies collected from drug forfeiture programs equal to two of the most successful programs in the state—Head Start and Women, Infants and Children.
