The motoring public can help reduce the risk to children going to and from school bus stops and school by:

- Slowing down around schools and residential areas.
- Watching for children.
- Being aware that children are unpredictable and inexperienced in traffic.
- Looking for clues that warn of children in the area (safety patrols, crossing guards, bikes, school buses, etc.)
- Obeying the school bus stop laws.
- Practicing extra caution in bad weather or when the sun at the horizon obscures vision.
- Clearing fogged windows before starting to drive in the morning.
- Obeying all traffic signs and symbols.
- Being alert for late students running to catch the school bus.
- Practicing extra caution around school sites as students, parents and teachers, and school buses all converge.
