Tookeybird, KRZ's official mascot, assisted the Dallas varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders in encouraging the students, parents, teachers and staff walking laps.

Class poster contest winners included: "Holly's Hopping Hares" (Mrs. Holly's second grade class) for funniest poster; "Quick Like a Bunny" (Mrs. Quick's second grade class) for best theme, and "Flick's Firecrackers" (Mrs. Flick's third grade class) for most original poster.

Two classes, Miss Frederick's first grade and Mrs. Klick's second grade, tied in raising the highest dollar amount: $231.50.

Judges included computer aide Mrs. Matley, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction Dr. Gilbert Griffiths, librarian Mrs. Camp, art teacher Mrs. Donahue, music teacher Mrs. O'Connell and gym teacher Mr. Griffin.

Slocum Days features local history lesson

Settlers, who first came to the area over 200 years ago, will return to Francis Slocum State Park on October 10 and 11 when the park sponsors its annual Francis Slocum Days.

The 1992 event will cater to all ages according to Park Naturalist Jerry Kozlansky. Kozlansky is organizing the event which will feature the history of the park, as well as the settlers and Indians in the region.

"Few people really know the history of the park, the legend of Frances Slocum and why the park is here today," Kozlansky said.

Kozlansky said that there is an interest in history, mainly because of the rich history in this area. He said that the historical events which the park offers have the biggest turnouts.

"People really want to learn and educate themselves on the history of the area," Kozlansky said.

Kozlansky said that Frances Slocum was five years old when she was abducted by the Delaware Indians in 1778. Years later, she was discovered living in Indiana with the Miami Indian tribe.

Kozlansky said that Slocum was kidnapped to replace a brave who was lost in battle, something that was regularly done in many Indian tribes.

Kozlansky said that the difference between how Indians are portrayed in movies and books, and how they actually lived is always discussed in the programs which the park sponsors.

The two day event will feature demonstrations, Indian games for the children, and a hike to the rock shelter where Frances spent her first night with the Delaware Indians. Indian culture will be featured on the 11th with the settlers to the area being featured on the 10th.

"The large area by the lake gives us enough room for the Indian games and the visitors center at the park is also a small museum which people love to visit," Kozlansky said.

Kozlansky said that members of the Dennison House will offering a colonial sing-a-long and story telling. David Two Wolves Smith and Laughing Bear will speak about indian tradition and culture.

Colonial face painting and crafts will be offered and Mary Baker will be leading the group in Colonial stories, according to Dorothy Walker of the Dennison Advocates of the Dennison House.

The Dennison Advocates are a group which interprets the history of the Dennison House, Walker said.

"We have different programs and different groups participate every year because of the varied history of the area," Kozlansky said.

My husband and I were recently married on September 26, 1992, and we feel some very special friends of ours deserve a proper thank you that comes only from the heart.

Our wedding reception was held at the Castle Inn, Dallas on Harveys Lake Highway. Mark and I were never so proud as we were that night. Every guest in attendance was treated like royalty. Mr. Omar Hallsson had given us all heartwarming memories of yesteryear as well as a night of paradise of glamour and ritz we will never forget.

Mr. Hallsson's staff is also astounding. Their dedication and true professionalism speak for themselves. Our guests in attendance at the reception are still giving rave reviews on the menu, the premises, the atmosphere and how the wedding reception was handled at the Castle Inn, and my husband and I have only been married one week. No one can stop talking about the class and elegance Omar Hallsson and his staff have given back to this historical landmark at Harveys Lake. "The change is unbelievably refreshing and remarkable," as one of our guests phrased it.

At this time, we would like to share our personal thoughts with Omar, Virginia, Steve, Stephanie and the rest of the staff at the Castle Inn with very special thanks!
