Lake-Lehman homecoming Oct. 17

Lake-Lehman High School will celebrate its homecoming with a special night game on October 17 at 7:30 p.m. The game will mark the first time a night game will be played by the Lake-Lehman Black Knights on their home field.

The festivities will start with a parade of floats made by students from each class and the seven nominees for homecoming queen. The parade will begin at 6 p.m. and will circle once around the football field. The homecoming queen candidates will be introduced before the crowning of the 1992 queen is announced. Candidates for homecoming queen are Cathy Cave, Dyan Diamond, Cherub Honeywell, Heather Isaac, Joy Kline, Jill Smigtelski and Autum Tolbert.

New group supports learning at Lake-Lehman Junior High School is more than just learning between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. At least, that's the message that a new group at Lake-Lehman Junior High School hopes to pass on to students and the community.

Thirty-one parents and teachers of junior high students met Wednesday, October 7, to form a new Teens, Parents and Teachers organization.

"It's a shame to close our doors at 4 p.m., when we know that our students could use our building after school for other purposes," said Principal Robert O. Roberts. "I would like to see this organization serve as a link between the school and the community."

Roberts suggested intramural sports and hunter education courses as two possible programs that students could benefit from.

The hunters' safety education course is currently offered only once or twice a year by the Pennsylvania Game Commission. Holding an additional session at the Junior High School would benefit students who couldn't attend the regular session, Roberts said.

According to chairman Lynn Sutliff, the group's goals are to promote the welfare of young adults in the home, school and community, serve as a link between the school and the students' homes and to provide activities, help build self-esteem and school spirit and encourage academic achievement for every teen.

"We will ask the school officers to act as a student advisory committee and to serve on special project committees," Sutliff said.

The group discussed several special projects, including revamping the school store's stock and changing its hours, publishing a monthly newsletter, organizing a teachers' hospitality committee and holding a student competition to design a school t-shirt, to be sold to students.

Students may work either singly or in groups of up to four, with the top three shirt designs being selected by the class officers. All students will choose one design from the top three. Students may use the school library's computerized graphics program or work free-hand.

The designers of the winning t-shirt will receive a free shirt and have their photo in the school's yearbook.

Students also will write reports for the monthly newsletter and help out in the school store.

All funds raised by the group will be used for activities in the Junior High School, Sutliff said.

The organization adopted a set of by-laws and elected the following officers: Lynn Sutliff, chairman; Jan Elston, co-chairman; Donna DeCesaris, secretary; Trudi Steele, treasurer; Rose Lucarino newsletter coordinator; and Helen Frank and Joyce Birt, teachers' hospitality committee.

The teachers and students will form their own advisory committees, Roberts said.
