5th graders helped

I felt good writing for first grader Matthew Rattgan because he was neat he was a typical boy he wanted boy things like nintendo.
David Werts

Today I wrote a letter for a 1st grader named Jenifer Opele and it felt good because in 1st grade third grade wrote my letter and I wrote a letter in third and now in fifth.

Jeff Kosakowski and Jennifer Opele

I felt happy when I wrote a letter to Santa Claus I helped write what they wanted. His name was Tim Fleig.
Ryan Onyszcak

I felt good writing a letter for a little kid. Some of the ideas were funny. It was fun because I like littler kids.
Jacob Swartwood and Sean Dewitt

I felt nervous helping at first helping the girl as I was writing for Christine C. But as I went along I got in the flow of writing. It was delightful.
David Jumper

I really enjoyed helping John B. with his letter to Santa because he made me remember when the fifth graders did it for me and what Christmas is really about. He was very easy to work with.
Jennifer Dembroski

I really liked helping the first grade. I had a lot of fun. I helped Andrew G. from Mrs. Rodgers class.
Jennifer Dymond

It was fun missing out on the spelling test while doing something better. There was a girl named Angla and I wrote a letter for her. Santa Claus is the magical part of Christmas and so are the reeindeer. I had a lot of fun writing the letter.
Brandon Warner

It was very exciting helping the first grade writing their Christmas letters to Santa. I helped a little girl called Sylena M. She was very nice little girl and helping her with the letter brought back the spirit of Christmas when I was little.
