The Spring Session for tutoring at the Y will begin in January and continue until May 25. Tutors are asked to volunteer one hour a week to help local children with their studies. Scheduling is flexible with lessons beginning every hour and

The Old Christmas Photo published December 16 had some interesting responses. We learned who the people are as well as some background information. Our thanks goes to Bob Rave and Nancy Hughes Dukes who gave us the following information.

The children were all neighbors of the late photographer, James Kozemchak and all were from the Huntsville Road Area. The photo with the children and sheep was actually taken at Hillside Farms, but Mr. Kozemchak superimposed it with a photo he had (of a camel and tree and star) of an annual display at Lehman Center.

We also learned from Nancy Hughes Dukes that her family had been burned out and they lost all their photos in the fire. It gives The Dallas Post great pleasure to present this photo to Nancy, she now has something from her childhood memories that didn't go with the fire.

Do you have an old photo to share with our readers?

Bring it to our office at 45 Main Road in Dallas (across from Offset Paperback). We can prepare it for publication without damaging the original. Photos with historical interest, such as buildings or landscapes that no longer exist are of particular interest.
