By NANCY KOZEMCHAK

The 47th annual Back Mountain Memorial Library is now history and, once again, a tremendous effort was made by library board members, staff members, auction volunteers and the general public who support this library in so many ways. There was very little rain this year, however, the two major defects proved to be the excessive heat and humidity and the small 'innocent' elm spanworm. The heat kept many auction-goers from getting here early and evidently they had their late afternoon meal elsewhere. The refreshment stand suffered from this aspect as did the auction block bidding program. The number of people signing up for bidder numbers was down quite a bit from last year.

I understand this new voracious 'king of the forest'—the elm spanworm has already left about 1 million treed acres in Pennsylvania practically leafless. We have to hope the natural predators—parasites that attack elm spanworm egg masses—will cause a population crash. If spraying is needed, it won't happen until spring. Hopefully, our area will not suffer.

The auction, as always, is a major summertime event in the Back Mountain. The lemonade and ice cream stands were very busy, doing volumes of business. Bill Jones, general chairman, of the '93 auction has our undying gratitude for his efforts on our behalf. Our auction treasurer and his finance committee have not completed their accounting; therefore, a net amount of profit has not been reported. The grounds committee is busy storing the auction equipment and restoring the grounds. We look forward to Auction 1994, our 48th annual!

The winners of the 50/50 chance items were: 1st place, Cathy Thomas; 2nd place, Mary Jane Gover and 3rd place, George Bauman. The antique chance items were awarded to Diana Dreher, 1st prize, Victorian lamp table; Fred and Shirley Templin, 2nd prize, a chenille teddy bear and Jeff Getz, 3rd prize, an antique brass scale.

New books at the library: "New Flavor of the Month" by Olivia Goldsmith is a sharp, sassy Cinderella story, updated by nineties style from Hollywood. Actress Mary Jane Moran—never a beauty—has just lost not only the off-Broadway role she created but also the only man she ever loved. Hollywood has stolen both, and rejected her as too fat, too plain and at 34, too old for the movie version. She has no power as an actress or a woman.

"The Horse You Came In On" by Martha Grimes is a Richard Jury novel. He is supposed to be on holiday when the telephone call comes. And in any case, what has sudden death on American soil to do with an English police superintendent? When the victim turns out to be British by birth, he pries himself loose from his holiday and crosses the Atlantic.

TANNERY WORKERS ORGANIZING A UNION

Although reports of a strike and serious labor disturbances at Noxen were discovered to be without truth this week, it was learned definitely that employees of the J.K. Mosser Tannery, owned by Armour & Co., are perfecting organization of a union preparatory to asking for a higher wage scale, shorter working week and additional employees to help care for increased employment.

40 Years Ago - July 31, 1953 LARGE NEW MOTEL TO BE BUILT IN BORO

It was reliably reported yesterday in real estate circles that a new 25-30 unit motel, costing in the neighborhood of $75,000 will be constructed before winter on land opposite Casper's Restaurant at the intersection of Route 309 and Memorial Highway in Dallas Borough.

With a string of three smashing victories against stiff competition under its belt, Back Mountain Little League All Stars last night met Newport for the District 3 title at the Tripp Street diamond of Forty Fort Little League. The winner of last night's tilt will meet Stroudsburg District 4 finalists.

30 Years Ago - Aug. 1, 1963 THE LUNDY BUILDING IS FOR SALE AGAIN

which has withstood the ups and downs of being the most passed-around fine tavern locale in the Back Mountain, will be up for public auction. How the bidding will go is anyone's guess, although The Post knows for sure of several bidders who intend to try for it. Large crowds gathered both days for the Lollipop Open Invitational quarter-midget racing program Saturday and Sunday at the track on Memorial Highway. Attendance and entries were from many states all over the east. Two Back Mountain boys won places in the events.

The Alva Eggleston Fruit Farm at Vernon now boasts the largest cider press manufactured, capable of producing 15,000 daily. Purchased at Trenton, N.J., the new equipment was installed by special assemblers, an engineer and a rigger who spent four days putting together the unit.

20 Years Ago - Aug. 2, 1973 FAIR BOARD HOPES TO BUILD BMT HOSPITAL

Proceeds from the upcoming Dallas Fair and future fairs will probably be earmarked for a Back Mountain hospital as that dream seems to be nearing reality. The Dallas Fall Fair Inc. committee made up from representatives from Dallas Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs is making preparations for this year's fair and working out some of the preliminaries of starting the development of an area hospital.
