Lehman

around high school sports for more than a decade, Morgan knows that with so many new players, it may take a while to put the "W" in the in column.

"These players are just beginning to know each other, to know how they play and what their tendencies are," said Morgan, who was an assistant under Martini for 10 years. "Our defense has been playing well during the pre-season but we've had trouble scoring points. But we knew it would take some time for our offense to come around."

In addition to the returning players, Morgan is also counting on contributions from talented underclassmen Kelly Spencer (soph./utility), Rachel Kaufman (soph./center-forward), Adraenne Miroslaw (Fresh./guard) and Kim Spencer (fresh./forward-center).

"We haven't changed a whole lot on offense or defense," said Morgan. "But I think we'll press a little more on defense. We're also trying to play more of an up-tempo game. We have great kids. It's going to take some time but we've told our players to try to carry something new out of every practice."

Morgan wasn't about to take control of this ship alone so, ironically, he solicited the assistance of another longtime member of the Lehman basketball program - Mike Sharok.

"I told Mike he was coming out of retirement," laughed Morgan of his assistant, who was the boys' varsity head coach in the 1970's and is currently the school's varsity golf coach. "Mike is one of the best. We're going to have some fun this season."
