

Dave's quiz of soccer knowledge

- The only person who can use his/her hands during a soccer match is:
 - The referee.
 - The goalkeeper.
 - The person who sets the fire to the bleachers following the game.
- In order to get most out of the extensive television coverage of the World Cup, a viewer should have in his possession:
 - A soccer rulebook.
 - The complete rosters of both teams.
 - A large supply of No-Doz.
- Nearly half the world's population is expected to watch the World Cup. In the United States, television ratings for the games are expected to exceed:
 - The mini-series "Roots"
 - The final episode of M*A*S*H
 - A rerun of "Hello Larry"
- A "yellow card" in soccer is a caution for:
 - Misconduct
 - A hard foul
 - To warn anyone who watches more than two games not to drive a car or operate heavy machinery.
- A goal in soccer is:
 - One of the most exciting moments in all of sports.
 - The culmination of teamwork and hard work.
 - As rare as the Stanley Cup making an appearance at Madison Square Garden.
- Many countries, like Switzerland, prohibit their players from bringing their wives to the World Cup because:
 - They don't want any distractions.
 - It's too expensive.
 - It may be the only time they score during the monthlong tournament.
- World Cup '94 will go down in American sports history as a success because:
 - The U.S. team will advance to the second round.
 - Everyone wants to learn what our kids already know.
 - Two billion people can't be that wrong. Can they?
