

Trophy black bear skulls, deer racks to be measured

The Pennsylvania Game Commission will measure whitetail deer antlers and black bear skulls taken by hunters in Pennsylvania April 2, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Dallas Middle School gymnasium located off of Route 309 along Hildebrandt Road, Dallas.

If not scored previously in a Game Commission measuring program, trophies taken in any year may be measured.

Those who submit the largest trophies, on a statewide basis, in this spring's measuring program will be feted at appropriate recognition ceremonies next fall.

The following rules will apply:

1. All racks, including spike bucks, will be measured. Only "clean" bear skulls will be measured; all adhering flesh, membrane and cartilage must have been removed.

2. Sawed, split or repaired skulls will not be measured.

3. Antlers may not show removed or repaired points.

4. Trophies must have been taken in Pennsylvania in fair chase, defined by Boone and Crockett Club.

5. Trophies will not be measured if taken on regulated shooting areas or private reserves.

6. Trophy must have been taken in compliance with the Pennsylvania Game Law.

7. Trophies measured in a previous Game Commission program may not be reentered.

8. All measurements of the judges will be final.

9. The Pennsylvania Game Commission retains the right to reject any entry.

10. The Pennsylvania Game Commission shall not be responsible for any trophy lost or damaged.

Sportsmen are urged to participate since measuring programs are conducted only every two or three years. This program is conducted as a public service to all sportsmen at no charge.

SEMINARY FRIENDS AND ALUMNI - Back Mountain residents Claire C. Evans and Dr. George Speace will head Wyoming Seminary's 150th anniversary fundraising campaign.

Evans, Speace will chair Sem fundraising campaign

Two area residents have been named as chairpersons of the Leadership Gifts Phase of Wyoming Seminary's 150th anniversary campaign.

Claire C. Evans of Dallas and Dr. George Speace of Shavertown are leading alumni, parents and friends of the school to reach the campaign's $15 million goal, the largest in the school's history.

Evans, a 1952 graduate, holds a bachelor's degree from Marymount College. Formerly director of alumni programs at Wyoming Seminary and a former Seminary trustee, she has served as a volunteer with the American Cancer Society, the Junior League of Wilkes-Barre, and as a board member of the Osterhout Library. She and her husband, Bill, reside in Dallas; their five children graduated from Wyoming Seminary.

A native of Villanova, Speace is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University, the University of Pennsylvania and Jefferson Medical College. A plastic and reconstructive surgeon, he is a member of the board of the Wyoming Valley Health Care System, Inc. He is a Wyoming Seminary trustee and previously served as a member of the school's President Council.

Speace and his wife, Cathy are the parents of five, four of whom are Wyoming Seminary students.

Fresh Air Fund seeks host families

The Fresh Air Fund is looking for host families to open their hearts and homes to Fresh Air children.

In 1994, thousands of New York City's most disadvantaged boys and girls escaped the violence of city streets to enjoy the simple pleasures of two weeks in the country.

Dallas is one of The Fund's 315 Friendly Towns located in 13 northeastern states from Virginia to Maine and Canada. In 1994, 17 families hosted Fresh Air children in Dallas. Right now, The Fund needs to reach out to qualified new host families to serve even more inner-city children, enabling them to experience life away from the confines of the city.

Fresh Air youngsters on first-time visits to host families are between six and 12 years old, and families may request a boy or a girl and the approximate age of their visitor. A Fresh Air child can create special summer memories for a family and can be a wonderful addition to summertime fun.

The Fresh Air Fund is an independent, not-for-profit agency, which has provided free summer vacations to more than 1.6 million disadvantaged New York City children since 1877.

Children are selected to participate in The Fresh Air Fund program based on financial need. Children are from low-income families, with the majority receiving some form of public assistance. Fresh Air youngsters are enrolled by over five participating social service organizations in all five boroughs of New York City. Children receive medical check-ups before arriving in Dallas. The Fund provides transportation.

Fresh Air children on first-time visits are boys and girls, six to 12 years old, who spend two weeks with volunteer host families in the summertime. Sixty percent of Fresh Air children are invited to visit the same host families year after year. Reinvited children continue in the program through age 18 and may be invited to visit for more than two weeks.

There are no financial requirements for hosting a child. Most hosts simply want to share their homes with less fortunate children. Host families may request boys or girls and the approximate age of their Fresh Air child. The Fund also has a unique program for placing children who have special emotional or physical needs with host families.

The Fresh Air Fund, a not-for-profit agency, has provided free summer vacations to more than 1.6 million disadvantaged New York City children since 1877. If you are interested in becoming a host family or learning more about The Fund, call Karen Duncan at 696-4245.
