Students had to write about what they considered America's calling to be. Several people wrote about subjects such as joining the armed forces or helping children become what they want to. Lily's winning speech considered America's calling to be "believing in yourself, your dreams and your future." She will receive a monetary prize for her placing in the finals.

From Lily's American studies class, taught by John Comitz and Jane Smityh, various teachers chose the seven speeches that they judged best. The six other students were Melissa Mitchell, Amber Posatko, Niki Cornell, Danielle Conte, George Frank and Christina Farrell.
