Old truck fetches $4250

LEHMAN TOWNSHIP - The supervisors unanimously accepted a bid of $4,250.50 from Mihalka Trucking in Avoca for the purchase of the township's 1987 Ford F-350 four-wheel, drive one-ton pickup truck with a snowplow and ash spreader.

The truck was recently replaced by a heavier GMC dump truck, according to roadmaster Doug Ide.

Other bidders were Dean Kreidler, $2,020; Dallas Nursery, $3,875; Greg Zimmerman, $3,500 and L. M. Getz, $1,009.

Zoning officer Charles Bartlett reported he issued three permits and collected $556 in fees during the past month. He issued a temporary permit for a charitable event to the Wyoming Valley Striders for a race and building permits to Alan Major of Market St. for a 24 x 46 pole storage building and to Tim Weaver of Hoover Road for a new two-bedroom home.

He denied a permit to Hale James Bronson, who wanted to erect a building on a lot which is too small.

Bartlett issued zoning violation notices to Daniel Major of Jackson Road, who is operating a lawn and garden equipment repair and retail business in a residential district and to Michael Katrainak of Shickshinny for a property located at 100 Lakeside Drive, Lake Silkworth. Violations include construction of an accessory structure without a permit and erecting two storage buildings in a district where only one is allowed. Katrainak has also built stone-work and stone steps on the township right-of-way in front of his home, according to supervisor David Sutton.

"They're a hazard. We could accidentally run into them with a snowplow or other equipment," Ide said.
