GAME NOTES

There is usually not much to say about an injured or sick skunk call, which most WCO's approach with caution for obvious reasons. This particular call led me to an anxious lady who was having her roof repaired. She told me that one of the roofers walked up behind the skunk and placed a large bucket over it so it wouldn't escape. I asked her about the skunk's behaviour before I arrived. She told me it had come from a ripped open garbage bag across the street and that it had a staggering gait. Lifting up the bucket while praying and holding my breath, I observed a sick looking skunk, which I promptly dispatched and placed in a trash bag for removal. When we checked the open garbage bag for more skunks found a very large wine bottle with some wine left in it. The lady said "I guess this brings meaning to the phrase drunk as a skunk." How could I disagree with that logic?
