Business association Halloween party

The Back Mountain Business and Professional Association held its first Halloween party for members and guests Oct. 29 at the clubhouse of the Huntsville Golf Club, Lehman. About 30 costumed partygoers enjoyed an evening of fun, music and good food in the gaily decorated main dining area.

District Justice James Tupper kept everyone guessing about the identity of the old washerwoman until it became too hot under his mask.

"The Deceivers," a four-piece band that includes Bill Jumper and BMBPA president John Alaimo, kept things hopping with a selection of classic hits.

Elva Valentine, Valentine's, as Little Orphan Annie complete with Sandy, and Brad Blaine, as the ultimate nerd, Bill Gates.

Bruce and Beth Rosenthal, center photo, were joined by Bill and Mary Griffin as ladies with the habit of accompanying ghouls to parties. Rosenthal is associated with Rosenn, Jenkins and Greenwald and Mary Griffin operates Mary Griffin Real Estate.

John and Ellen Alaimo. He's a chiropractor and the association president, she's partner in an engineering firm. He also played bass in the band.
