Put the freeze on energy costs with an energy-efficient freezer.

Need more freezer space for Thanksgiving leftovers and Uncle Stan's venison? Sounds like you need a new freezer with the Highest Energy Efficiency Rating available.

Plus, there may still be rebates available on other energy-efficient appliances. Rebates are running out, so call today! (717) 693-2771.

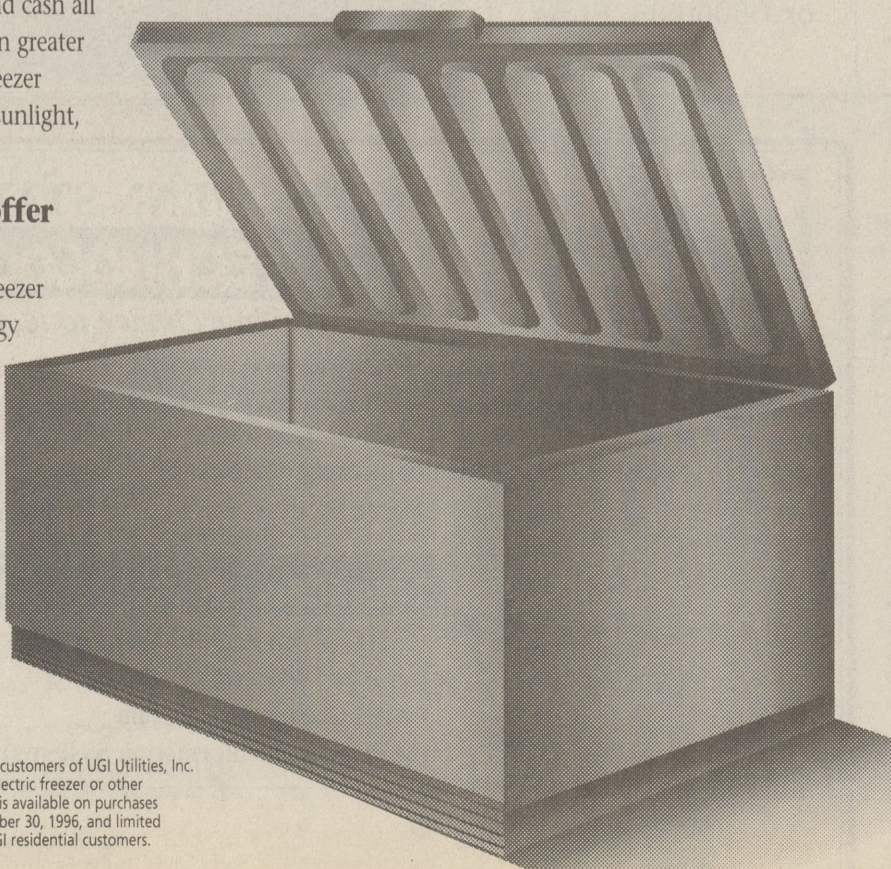

Whether you purchase a new standard chest model or a deluxe upright with extra features, you'll save energy and some cold cash all year long. (P.S. For even greater savings, locate your freezer indoors, out of direct sunlight, and keep it full.)

Hurry! Rebate offer expires soon!

Purchase an electric freezer with the Highest Energy Efficiency Rating, and you could qualify for a $30 rebate from UGI.

Offer available only to residential customers of UGI Utilities, Inc. Electric Division (UGI) buying an electric freezer or other selected electric appliances. Offer is available on purchases made between May 1 and November 30, 1996, and limited to a predetermined number of UGI residential customers.

Parent training session Nov. 9

The Northeastern Region of Parent to Parent of Pennsylvania will be sponsoring a Parent Training Seminar on November 9, at the Scranton Arc Building at 115 Meadow Avenue, Scranton. It will be held from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Parent to Parent of Pennsylvania is a network, created by families of children and adults with special needs. The organization connects families in similar situations with one another so that they may share experiences, offer practical information and/or provide support. We're looking for parents of special needs children who are willing to provide information, offer support and otherwise help another family who has a special needs child.

Any parents interested in attending the seminar on listening techniques, confidentiality and meeting other parents, please call the Northeast Parent to Parent office at 829-2320 or 829-2324 for further information and a registration form. The cost is free.
