HOLIDAY PAGEANT

Third graders at Westmoreland Elementary School presented their annual holiday show last week. The student performed a play, "Santa and His Snowmobile," demonstrated the traditions of Hannukah and sang choral selections. Rhonda Seeber and Debbie Pike directed the program.

WE'D LIKE YOU TO HAVE ALL THE FACTS BEFORE SOMEONE ASKS YOU TO MAKE A VERY IMPORTANT DECISION

Perhaps you've had a phone call. Lately, salespersons (employed by organizations other than funeral homes) have been actively offering funeral merchandise "prearrangement" opportunities — that is, plans where you may purchase caskets, vaults and other things now, in anticipation of eventual need.

IF A SALESPERSON CALLS

We want you to make an informed decision on prearrangements, whether you wish to purchase funeral merchandise alone or an entire funeral package. It's up to you to ask the right questions.

- Ask whether you are being offered a complete funeral service.
- Ask whether you are speaking with a licensed Funeral Director.
- Ask if you can compare the offer and call back at a later time. If you feel as though you're being pressured -- unfortunately, you probably are.

CONSULT A LICENSED FUNERAL DIRECTOR

Contact us, for more information on funeral merchandise and complete funeral prearrangements. We can sit down in your home or ours and discuss these options, explain the costs of a complete funeral and help you compare.

Most of all, we want you to feel you're making all the right decisions. Because our service to this community is more than a business. It's a tradition of comfort and trust.

Remember, only a licensed funeral director can sell funeral services.

Anyone can sell you funeral merchandise.

The experience to serve you better, the compassion to understand your needs.

10 Tips for Holiday Safety.

- 1 Decorate indoors and outdoors with only UL-approved lights.
- 2 Choose new cool lights for safe, energy-efficient operation.
- 3 Test old lights before trimming the tree.
- 4 Discard light strings that are frayed or damaged.
- 5 Don't overload the wiring system in your home. If other lights dim when holiday decorations are turned on, switch lights to another circuit.
- 6 Avoid overloaded extension cords—they create an electrical hazard.
- 7 When decorating outdoors, use only a wood or fiberglass ladder—never metal—and stay away from power lines.
- 8 Keep your tree away from heat sources. TVs, radiators and fireplaces dry out trees and can create a fire hazard.
- 9 Never use indoor lights outdoors.
- 10 Keep a fire extinguisher handy at all times!

Everyone at UGI's Electric Division wishes you and your family a safe, happy holiday!
