qualifying for the state championships. To do so, he must win districts or surpass the 50-foot mark. "My goal for this season is to throw 50 feet," said Townsend, whose best throw so far this year has been 47 feet. "I'm working toward districts and focusing on technique. I'm trying to get comfortable with my technique. That is the most important aspect of the shotput."

Townsend will hang up his track shoes and become a one-sport man at Johns Hopkins, at least during his freshman year. "I'm only going to play football during my first year," he explained. "I know I'm going to have a heavy workload. If I can handle it, I might go out for track as a sophomore. I'm just going to see how things go."

For now, Townsend will continue to work out in preparation for his collegiate football career, which begins in mid-August. "Coach Margraff will be sending me some information concerning pre-season," said Townsend. "I'm very happy with my decision and am really looking forward beginning my college career."
