Alison Gager named outstanding intern

Alison J. Gager was named Outstanding Student Teaching Intern in the Secondary Education Licensure Program on Honors Day, April 18, by the College of Education and Social Studies at the University of Vermont. After completing her undergraduate degree with a Bachelor of Arts in geography in May of 1996, Alison returned to Vermont and Montpelier High School as a full time intern to complete the Secondary Education Licensure Program in order to teach social studies in 7th-12 grade.

As an undergraduate, Alison was a member of the Dean's List, Mortar Board National Honor Society, Who's Who Among America's Colleges and Universities and Gamma Theta Pi International Geography Honor Society.

Alison is the daughter of John and Beth Gager of Dallas. She is currently employed as Associate Director of Admissions at Wyoming Seminary, Kingston.

Alison is a 1996 graduate of the university - the oldest and largest institution of higher learning in Vermont.

Dr. Stevan Davies receives grant to study in Guatemala

Dr. Stevan Davies of Dallas, professor of religious studies at College Misericordia, has received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to participate in its Summer Institute in Guatemala and the Yucatan Peninsula, Mexico. Participants in the six-week Institute will study the religion, archeology and art of the ancient Maya, the contemporary Mayan people who live in villages in Guatemala and Yucatan, and the art and architecture of the colonial Spanish.

Dr. Davies will be one of 25 professors in various disciplines from the United States taking part in the Institute. The group will visit 14 separate Mayan architectural sites, such as Tikal, Chichen Itza, Palenque and Copan.

Dr. Davies will be studying the ancient Mayan religion to determine if there are any elements that would help further understanding of Christianity. The Mayan religion is a shamanistic religion, focusing on visions and travels of the soul. He will use his research to write articles for journals, Dr. Davies said.

Winter Rusiloski named All-American Scholar

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Winter Rusiloski from Shavertown, has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established that All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3, or higher, grade point average.

Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Winter who attends Lake-Lehman, was nominated for this national award by Mrs. Wayman.

Winter will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally.

The Academy selects All-American Scholars upon the exclusive recommendation by teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors.

Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the USAA for other honors.

Rusiloski is the daughter of Stan and Pat Rusiloski from Shavertown. She is the granddaughter of Shavertown and Mildred Bennett of Wilkes-Barre.

Bradbury receives grant

Dr. David Bradbury, assistant professor of communication at Wilkes University, is one of eight media educators in the nation to receive a 1997 summer faculty development grant from the national Association of Television Program Executives.

The NATPE summer faculty program allows teaching faculty to spend the summer working with a local station, cable system, network or syndicator to increase teaching effectiveness through first hand experience.

Since 1990, Dr. Bradbury has taught telecommunications at Wilkes. He has also served as faculty advisor for WCLH-FM, the University's student-run radio station.

"This is a great opportunity for me to bring 'real world' experience into the classroom to help my students learn about television programming," said Bradbury about the NATPE grant.

Dr. Bradford L. Kinney, chair of the Wilkes Communications Department, said the NATPE program is "ideal for faculty at teaching-oriented communications programs."

"The more first-hand professional experience faculty have, the more opportunities students will have in their classroom and studio work, especially when they are involved in professional internships. We are very proud of David's selection for this prestigious award," said Kinney.

Dr. Bradbury was funded for a three-week grant at a broadcasting facility in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Bradbury received his B.A. from Heidelberg College in Ohio, a M.A. from West Virginia University and his Ph.D. from Temple University.

He and his wife, Jill and their two children, Jennifer and Jonathan reside in the Back Mountain.
