bid and the second lowest bidder.

Jay Pope shared his concerns. "Usually if the price is too good to be true, it is," he said.

Patricia Peiffer, council president, said the borough's engineers recommended the excavating company. "I think we'll have to go with what our experts suggest," she said.

Wright and Pope voted against the resolution.

In other business, Paulette Bent of Terrace Ave. vented her concerns about people parking in front of her driveway. Bent said that even posted "No Parking" signs had no effect during a recent estate sale on her street.

Peiffer said police were there one of the two days of the sale ticketing cars in violation of parking ordinances.

Ted Krohn, borough solicitor, suggested she call City-Wide Towing and at no cost they will tow vehicles blocking her driveway.

The borough wants to remind people that there is now no through traffic on King St., which runs behind the municipal building. The road has proven to be a safety risk. The borough asks that citizens find alternate routes.

The board also held a few moments of silence in memory of Leo Corbett who served as the borough's engineer.
