Nancy Kozemchak

The 51st annual Back Mountain Memorial Library Auction begins on Thursday evening, July 10 beginning at 6 p.m. and concluding on Sunday evening at 12:00. Joseph Stager is general chair with Ruth Tetschner as co-chair.

A sign up sheet is available at the front desk for anyone interested in helping during the auction in any of the many spaces and booths. Joyce Gebhardt, sand art booth, is asking for baby food jars with lids, jelly jars with lids and the mystic drink bottles. These may be dropped off at the library in a special container in the entryway.

Gearing up for the auction

Ernest Ashbridge has a very exciting antique booth filled with treasures and is working on items to be ready for the auction. He has in the booth to date, 600 antique items. Jeff Matus, chair of the book booth, is looking for more books for the booth. Hard cover fiction, and non-fiction, cookbooks, art, gardening and literature are good sellers. He would also accept some recent text books.

The library is selling bells at the front desk to commemorate the 51st auction for $1. each. These bells then hang in the entry way with the donor's name inscribed on them. There are also antique chances and new goods items chances for sale. The refreshment booth will be serving their many great sandwiches; lemonade and funnel cakes will be available; ice cream and many different activities for the children. July 10 through 13, the place to be is the library auction grounds!

New books at the library: "Striking and Chiming Clocks" by Eric Smith offers detailed notes on the principal mechanisms involved in clock-repair along with practical advice that both professional and amateur restorers will find invaluable. He focuses on sounding systems to improve other mechanisms.

"The Genesis Code" by John Case builds momentum with fascinating characters, a breakneck chase, and then hits you between the eyes with a shocking, unexpected climax. Joe wakes to the phone in the dead of night; his sister and young son have died in a blaze in their expensive home in Washington.

"Idle Curiosity" by Martha Bergland is a feisty and compassionate novel that understands while families are more complicated, their need for simple love and understanding is no less compelling.

Her observations are fresh and illuminating, her humor is earthy, and her characters are full-hearted.
