High school bands off to good start this season

By MICHAEL TWICHELL
Post Correspondent

LEHMAN - The Dallas and Lake-Lehman high school marching bands have charged straight into this year's competitive marching season, as demonstrated by their strong performances at Lehman's annual Tournament Of Bands (T.O.B.) competition, held this past Sunday.

Dallas, under the direction of Jerry Baldauff, finished in second place in Group I, two points behind first place winner Montrose. "We're right about where we expected to be," said Baldauff.

Dallas's "School Days" show received enthusiastic responses from the crowd. "The kids did a good job, and we're pleased with the reception the show has been getting," Baldauff said.

As host band, Lake-Lehman performed in exhibition only. The band's "Riverdance" show was well received by the crowd. "We're pleased with the kids' performance today," said Lehman band director Edward A. Richards. "It was a good start for the year."

Both bands have several more competitions scheduled, the next at Pocono Mountain high school this coming Saturday, Oct. 4.

With the number of band competitions held throughout the fall, many people don't realize what it takes for the host band to put together such an event.

"There's a lot of behind-the-scenes planning to make these shows work, a lot of which, in our case, is done by the band parents," said Richards. The process actually can begin as much as four months in advance. "We contacted T.O.B. back in May about setting a date for the show. The requests for dates are handled pretty much first come first serve, so the earlier you start, the better," said Richards.

The band parents delegate various responsibilities within the organization, and continue preparing throughout the summer. "Invitations have to be sent out, decisions are made about what kind of concession stands to have, who will work them, and how to get the food and other supplies we need," said Richards.

After the responses from the competing bands are received, judges are assigned to the event, and the process continues. "We have to make sure that all the bands know when to be there, and keep trying," said Richards.

Richards also does his best to keep the parents informed, "on all the rules and regulations we have to worry about with T.O.B.," he said. "We have to have the field marked and lined properly, and set aside an area for people to videotape from, as well as try to keep things moving along during the show."

Richards expressed his gratitude to the Lake-Lehman Band sponsors for their hard work in putting the show on. "They do an amazing job, and being able to give them that responsibility definitely makes things a little easier for me," he said.
