

Science fact

The Lake-Lehman Middle Level Science Fair attracted a crowd of students, teachers and parents last week. Product comparisons were popular, such as a comparison of batteries done by John Yogodzinski, bottom photo.

Marianne Belles, a learning support teacher, demonstrated Jonathan Young's project, "Breathing Fire." When a jar was put over a burning candle, water was sucked into the jar to replace the oxygen that was burned.

Phillip Weaver, right photo, showed how shapes are affected by different environments, such as the illusion that a pencil is broken when seen in water.

Girl Scout summer camp registration

Penn's Woods Girl Scout Council has announced its 1998 summer resident camp program schedule. Camp Louise, Penn's Woods camp outside of Berwick, offers one and two week resident camping experiences for girls ages five thru 17. Resident camping is living in the out-of-doors under the careful supervision of trained camp counselors. All campers participate in swimming, boating, arts and crafts, nature activities, cookouts, hiking and other outdoor activities during their stay at camp. The campers plan activities with their counselors. Each week features an all-camp get-together for campfires, special meals or events. Camp programs are fun and designed to help girls develop confidence, respect for others, new friendships, self-esteem and values, a love of the out-of-doors, decision making and leadership skills.

The Camp Louise overnight Camp sessions focus on themes such as sports, outdoor photography, drama and theater, crafts just to name a few. First time campers ages five to eight can attend a Mini Camps session consisting of two nights and three days or a week long "Mom and Me" session for both mother and daughter. Girls eight and older can choose to attend a two week Paddle and Saddle session combining horseback riding and canoeing. Older girls ages 11 and older may attend a two week backpacking session or enter the five week long Counselor-in-Training program.

Camp fees begin at $65 for Mini Camp sessions to $145 for a regular one week session and may vary according to session length, content and theme.

Camp Louise is open to all girls, both Girl Scouts and non-members.

Non-Girl Scouts are welcome to attend camp for an additional fee of $55. To obtain a Summer Program Guide or for more information about camp, Girl Scout membership or adult volunteer opportunities contact the Penn's Woods Girl Scout Council at 829-2631 or 1-800-432-9786.

Sem 7th graders create The Upstairs News

Editing, headline writing and layout were on the agenda recently as Wyoming Seminary middle-school journalism students worked with Wilkes University students to edit and publish The Upstairs News.

Sem's seventh-grade students, under the direction of Marge Zeigler, write and publish their newspaper three times each year. For the most recent edition, they worked with Wilkes University journalism students to copy edit and design pages using Seminary's Lower School Tech Lab.

Zeigler is the link between the two classes; she teaches English at Seminary's Lower School and journalism at Wilkes.

"It was great to have college students and middle-school students working together," she said. "All of us had a chance to use our editing skills."

Newspaper collection to be held May 16
