Unconventional pianist to play Penn State

Richard Kastle, pianist of a strictly unconventional nature, will appear at Penn State Wilkes-Barre on Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Hayfield Community Room at the campus in Lehman.

Richard has a distinctly different style from his tuxedoed peers in dress and attitude (he has been sporting bright colors on short cropped hair for 10 years.) At age 8 Richard began playing the piano by ear, by age 10 he was performing his own virtuoso arrangement for the opening of Tschaikowsky Piano Concerto No. 1. He has since studied with Ivan Davis,

Richard Kastle's style is stripped down, physical and pure, taking you to the heart of the compositions without the artifice of convention. He captures audiences with his brilliant classical performances as well as his casual appearance at the piano. Kastle has appeared on television on "The Tonight Show" and "The Joan Rivers Show", "Entertainment Tonight," and CNN and has toured with Jay Leno as his opening act. One of his most recent appearances with Leno was in a 17,000 seat arena in Illinois where he stunned the audience with his performance of Beethoven's "Appassionata." His debut CD "Streetwise" was the top selling classical artist on the label.

Kastle has composed four tonal symphonies and seven piano concerti, as well as numerous sonatas and other virtuoso piano works. He is currently working on his fifth symphony at his home in Manhattan.
