

'Art'ing the Back Mountain'

An art show hosted by State Sen. Charles D. Lemmond Jr. will open with a reception at the Senator's district office Friday, Oct. 9, from 5 to 7 p.m. The artwork of members of the En Plein Air Society, artists who draw outdoor scenes on location, will be featured. According to Sue Hand, local artist and teacher and a member of the Society, all the paintings will depict scenes in the Back Mountain. "Painting in the outdoors results in seeing things from a fresh perspective," said Charles "Woody" Woodworth, one of the featured artists. "I find that the colors are more vivid than when I paint indoors, and this results in a true spontaneity in my paintings." Refreshments will be served at the reception, which is free and open to the public. The show will run Oct. 9-29.

Library news

Nancy Kozemchak

The Friends of the Back Mountain Memorial Library have announced the seventh annual fresh citrus sale is about to get under way. The sale will include grapefruit, oranges and, this year, tangerines. They will be packed in boxes of 2/5 bushel.

The dates for ordering will be between October 26 and November 20 with delivery of the fruit here on December 11. The order forms for the sale will be available beginning October 26.

The library's special children's cookbook, "Junior Chefs and Artists" is available at the front desk in the library. The cookbook sells for $9.50, including tax. The young people of the community have cooked, written recipes and shared their artistic talents to make this book. The cookbook makes a nice gift for a child interested in creating some exciting food dishes.

New books at the library: "Trains of the Old West" by Brian Solomon is given to the library in honor of Richard Glass by Fran Dierolf and The Fettermans. The coming of the railroads to the American West forever changed the character of the frontier, marking the end of one era and the beginning of another. Besides changing the landscape, the railroad brought with it a new culture; new lifestyles, a new vocabulary, and new problems.

"Submarines: Leviathans of the Deep" is presented to the library by Bill McMichael in memory of Peter Bartorilla. "There are only two kinds of warships: submarines and targets." Cruising silently through the deep, carrying Armageddon within its weapons array, the submarine is the most lethal warship in existence. They are capable of submerged operation for months at a time and can elude the most sophisticated tracking technology; making the submariners' boast above frighteningly believable. This is a splendid chronicle of these vessels.

"The Not So Big House" is a blueprint for the way we really live. It is written by Sarah Susanka and given in memory of Clement A. Ganis presented by Shirley H. Yellitz. The book proposes clear, workable guidelines for creating homes that serve both our spiritual needs and our material requirements, for a couple with no children, a family, empty nesters, or one person alone. Why are we drawn more to smaller, more personal spaces than to larger ones?
