Dallas

"It's a phenomenal program," Jackson said about Berwick. "They're like a college team." In more ways than one. Jackson says the Bulldogs boast more than 70 players on their roster while Dallas has less than 50. That's in part because, while both schools are in Class AAA, there's a considerable size differential in the student body. Dallas is only seven boys above AA, while Berwick is only a few below AAAA.

Jackson and his assistants have seen Berwick play a couple of times this season, and he has film of three games. Berwick head coach George Curry has been scouting the Mounts, too. "He should get a season pass," Jackson said. "They've been at just about all of our games."

Numbers and size will be the biggest problems, Jackson says. "Their strong point is their size up front," he said. That, and the ability to run multiple formations. "Sometimes they bring four tight ends," he said. "We don't even have four tight ends."

On offense, the Dawgs have a solid quarterback and an all-state wide receiver. And they don't make many mistakes. "They don't beat themselves," is how Jackson characterizes it.

So, what will Dallas do? "We'll have to try to mix it up more on offense," he said, and play the solid defense the Mountaineers are known for. That worked against Lake-Lehman last week, as Dallas held the Black Knights to four first downs on the way to a 20-0 shutout victory. Matt Jackson led the offense with 172 yards on 38 carries and two touchdowns. Fullback Matt Acri got the other score, from 16 yards out in the fourth quarter.

Can the Mounts win? Berwick has been tested a couple of times this season, by Pittston and Tunkhannock, but no one has stayed with them for four quarters. That may not be a reason for optimism, but Dallas isn't known as a team that gives up, so Saturday should be interesting.

Intermetro Ind. 37 - Pace Physical Therapy 31

Pace Physical Therapy led at the end of the first quarter 11-5 on a well balanced scoring attack of David Lohin, Stephen Luksh and D.J. Tasselmyer. However, Intermetro caught fire in the second quarter and outscored Pace 12-5, with Tommy Mulhern sinking two three point shots. Intermetro led at halftime 17-16. Both teams traded baskets in the third quarter, with David Lohin and Stephen Luksh leading the way for Pace Therapy and Tyler Droppers and Mitch Mitchell providing Intermetro offensive power. The score was knotted up at 24 apiece at the end of the third quarter. Intermetro outscored Pace in the fourth quarter 13-7 with a well balanced scoring attack.
