

Sports show at Bloomsburg Fairgrounds Jan. 27-31

The 11th Annual Early Bird Sports Expo will be held at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds Jan. 27-31. This year's event according to Tom Austin, show director, "will feature all of the things that have made this show the very best five day event in the East as well as many new exhibits and features, some of which have never been seen in Pennsylvania before."

Roger Seiner, Trophy Show Productions, from Livingston, Montana, will bring his Eastman's Journal World Record Elk Tour to this year's show. This display features the greatest elk collection in the world including many record heads taken by archers, rifle and muzzleloader hunters as well as world record shed antlers. All antlers are authentic. The elk head display will be open during the entire show at no additional charge for show attendees.

Mary Lou Austin, show manager said that, "the exhibitors at this year's show include a wider variety than the past 10 years especially those who are promoting new products or offering hunting and fishing trips throughout the United States and Canada."

The state's biggest indoor 3-D archery event will again be held during the show. Jim Arner, coordinator for the event, has planned some new and exciting "twists" for this year's participants. Included will be traditional shooting on Saturday evening as well as the "dead-eye" competition and finals on Sunday. There are still a few openings for shooters, especially those who can shoot Friday afternoon.

Col-Mont Gobblers, the local chapter of the State Turkey Federation and E.H. Klechmer, Inc. of Montandon, will again sponsor an amateur and professional turkey calling contest. The amateur event will be held Friday evening, the professional contest Saturday evening.

The Berwick Bass Association will hold a kids' casting contest Sunday. Winners in this local event will have the opportunity to advance to state and national competition.

A variety of seminars has also been planned featuring some of the most requested seminar speakers and topics. Gary Alt will present his North American bear presentation on Wednesday night. BKS Waterfowling will have a program on hunting Pennsylvania geese on Thursday night. Friday afternoon a special program on the Pennsylvania elk will be held. Saturday Jack Kasun's will present his unique program on tracking whitetail deer. The presentation will use an anatomically correct life sized deer to show exactly where hits should be made and correct methods to successfully follow deer that have been hit.

The show will close with a sportsman's auction Sunday afternoon. Included will be all of the animals used in the 3-D competition and other items associated with the outdoors. This is an absolute auction with no reserves. Anyone who wants to include an auction item in the sale should contact show management during the show.

The show will be open from 5-10 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, noon-10 p.m., Friday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Saturday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4.50 or $4 with coupons available during January in area newspapers. A special $2 senior citizen admission charge will be in effect from noon to 4 p.m. Friday. Children under 12 always admitted free. Parking is free and food is available at the show throughout the event.

Contest information can be obtained by calling 683-5360.

All exhibitor space has been allocated for the 1999 show.

Keith McDonald earns master's degree in engineering

Keith McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald of Dallas, earned an M.S. in electrical engineering from Lehigh University on Jan. 10. McDonald graduated as Salutatorian of Dallas Senior High School in 1992 and received a B.S. in electrical engineering from Lehigh in May 1996. While an undergraduate, McDonald was a Lehigh University presidential scholar, an officer in Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, and was chosen for Who's Who in American College Students. He was a member of several honor societies, including Eta Kappa N (Electrical Engineering), Tau Beta Pi (engineering), and Omicron Delta Kappa (leadership). For the past two years, McDonald has been a recipient of the Phi Gamma Delta Graduate Scholarship. McDonald gained additional experience by working as an engineering assistant at Phasor Corp. Engineering Services, Kingston.

While studying at Lehigh, McDonald was employed as a research assistant in the Signal Processing and Communications Research Laboratory under his advisor, Prof. Rick S. Blum. McDonald's research interests have focused on the topics of wireless communications and the utilization of antenna arrays, concentrating in the areas of impulsive noise mitigation and space-time adaptive processing. His research findings have been presented at various conferences and are pending publication in several technical journals. McDonald's research efforts are supported in part by the United States Air Force Office of Scientific Research.

McDonald will continue his education at Lehigh to pursue a Ph.D. in electrical engineering. He has already successfully completed the Ph.D. Qualifying Exam as well as the Ph.D. General Exam.
