Dallas coaches donate batting cage

Dallas High School baseball coaches gave up their salaries for the 1999 season in order to purchase an outdoor batting cage for the team's use. The cage, which head coach John Bittner described as the best available, is 12 feet high, 18 feet across and 72 feet long, with heavy netting to prevent balls from escaping or entering. Bittner consulted with friends working in professional baseball when seeking the cage. It was installed outside the left field line at the varsity baseball field behind the high school. Herb Fehlinger and his company, Pioneer Construction, donated two days of work to install the cage, which is anchored to the ground by posts in cement. Coaches and the team gathered around the cage recently. From left: Dave Katyl, Bob Ashworth, John Bittner and Steve Federici with team members.

Seed mix and bird nesting kits for sale

Northeast Region of the Pennsylvania Game Commission will be conducting its annual "Working Together for Wildlife" sales again this year with one big exception. We regret that there will be no tree or shrub seedlings offered.

Due to a serious health condition caused by a sporotrichosis fungus spore in sphagnum moss used in the packing of tree seedlings, the Game Commission has decided to curtail the sale of seedling packets and the Growing Tree Program for this year.

However, the Commission will continue to offer its ten-pound packages of wildlife seed mix and the ever-popular blue bird nesting box kits. Packages of seed mix will sell for $5 and blue bird nesting box kits will sell for $6.

Each package of seed mix contains such wildlife foods as buckwheat, sorghum, dwarf sunflower and millet. Sales will be held at the Northeast Regional Office in Dallas, May 1, 8 a.m.-3 p.m.

SOCCER

Lehman 2, Abington 0

After a scoreless regulation, the Lady Knights scored twice in the first overtime period and then blanked the Comets the rest of the way. Alyson Bevan scored the first goal with an assist from Tara Mintzer, and Janna Elston scored the second two minutes later, assisted by Sara Rittenhouse. Trish Pilosi stopped eight shots.

Coughlin 1, Dallas 0

The Lady Mountaineers held off every Coughlin attack but one, as a penalty shot in the first half was the only scoring. Coughlin had 20 shots on goal, and Melonie Sappe stopped 18 of them. Dallas was held without a single corner kick.

Lehman 4, Hoban 0

Balanced scoring and strong defense led to a rout. Lehman had 22 shots on goal, but held Hoban to one, and had five corners to one. Sara Rittenhouse had two assists in a well-rounded offense. Tara Mintzer, Janna Elston, Melissa DeCesaris and Rachel Farley scored goals. Alyson Bevan picked an assist. Trish Pilosi saved the only shot she faced.

Sem 1, Dallas 0

Sem came out on top in a very evenly played contest. Dallas had 22 shots and eight corners. Sem had 20 and six; both goalies — Melonie Sappe for Dallas and Ashley Feldman for Sem — had 17 saves.
