Seat belts save lives

Heather Taylor and her son, Buck, 7, escaped serious injury Monday afternoon, when a pickup truck she was operating rammied into a concrete bridge abutment on Lower Demunds Rd. in Dallas Township. Taylor told police she was traveling south when a deer ran into the road in front of the truck. She said she swerved to miss the deer, lost control, and ran head-on into the side of the bridge. The truck spun around and flipped on its side before coming to rest. Taylor said both she and her son were wearing seat belts. In photo, Dallas fireman Ted Wright spread absorbent material on the road to soak up oil and gas that had leaked from the truck.

Shouldn't your advertising be, too?

Love him or hate him, Tip O'Neill knew one thing — when the votes are counted, it doesn't matter what people who live outside your district think about you. That's as true in the Back Mountain as it is in Back Bay, so if you're planning campaign advertising for a local office, put it where it will count the most...in The Dallas Post.

The Dallas Post is all local, all the time. Our readers are among the most influential and active in the region, so getting their vote might mean getting even more — their influence with friends and neighbors.

Sure, the city papers can claim more circulation, but what good does it do if the readers live in Wilkes-Barre, Pittston or Mountaintop? Not a bit.

Put your advertising where the votes are — in The Dallas Post. Call today for low rates and other information.
