Bartolini attends summer workshop

Brittany Bartolini of Dallas participated in Susquehanna University's "Business Challenge" summer workshop.

BRITTANY BARTOLINI

Participants were selected for the week-long workshop based on competitive academic achievement, leadership and future interest in the field of business. The students were recommended by a teacher or guidance counselor and chosen by faculty from the Sigmund Weis School of Business.

Bartolini, a senior at Dallas High School, is the daughter of Louis and Sharon Bartolini.

A key feature of the workshop was an interactive computer business simulation in which small teams of students operated a manufacturing company in a competitive environment. Teams made decisions regarding company policy, marketing, product development, market research, pricing and production. At the end of the workshop each team presented an annual report stating how their company performed and what they learned operating their own business.

Participants were introduced to finance, banking, stock and bond markets, sales advertising, global trade issues, and team work. Faculty from the Sigmund Weis School of Business and other business professionals assisted students, either in person or via teleconference, in managing their company. Guest speakers from the business community also spoke to participants during the week on various business issues, including environmental responsibility, marketing strategies and bank management.

Joseph earns Eagle Scout Award

Nicholas S. Joseph, a member of Troop 232, Gate of Heaven Church, received the highest award in scouting, the Eagle Scout Award. Nick earned this award, March 17, after successfully passing the Eagle Board of Review.

NICHOLAS JOSEPH

Nick started scouting as a Tiger Scout in 1990 and then earned all the Ranks in Cub Scouts. He earned the Roman Catholic Religious award, Parvuli Dei, and the highest award in Cub Scouting, the Arrow of Light. He earned his Boy Scout Rank, Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class, Star Rank and Life Scout badges.

Nick served Troop 232 as a Scribe for one year, and Patrol Leader for three years. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow.

Nick is very interested in environmental conservation and decided to focus on bats and their balance in the ecosystem for his Eagle Service Project. He first contacted Tim Conway of the Pennsylvania Game Commission in Dallas who provided a poster on the bats common to Pennsylvania, their habits and bat box building. He also included some pamphlets and pertinent information on bats which included myths that over the years have been made up about bats.

Next he contacted an area where he thought bats would need boxes. He called Moon Lake County Park and spoke with Mrs. May Livezey. She was excited to have bat boxes installed throughout the park. She had first hand experience with a bat invasion in her home on the marina at the park. The bats took a liking to her attic and bred there and one morning she awoke and over 400 bats were flying throughout her home where they were removed and relocated. She gave authorization for 10 bat boxes to be installed throughout the park. The park has trees, water and is a suitable environment.

Nick then solicited several area businesses for the materials he needed. He drew up his own set assembling instructions and Mr. Simon, his math teacher helped Nick to make a grid drawing the appropriate sizes and estimating the amount of lumber required for the project with the least bit of waste. Mr. Jake Apaliski, of Little Lumber donated the lumber and nails needed for the project.

He and his service project helpers cut, assembled and installed the bat boxes on trees and buildings throughout the park. They had to be installed in areas where the sun would shine the greater part of the day so the boxes were blackened with a torch which held heat for the bats. About 60 small brown bats would fit in each box.

Nick will be a sophomore at Bishop O'Reilly High School this fall and is a member of Gate of Heaven Church where he has been an altar server since fourth grade.
