Stanski attends national conference

Catherine Stanski of Shaver-town recently served as a representative at the American Dental Hygienists' Association (ADHA) national convention in San Diego, California. She is a second year student of the LCCC dental hygiene program.

Stanski represented all dental hygiene students in District II of the ADHA which includes Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, at the convention.

The week-long convention gave students and hygienists the opportunity to participate in workshops to improve communications skills, as well as continuing education courses on updated treatment methods.

The Northeastern Pennsylvania component of the Pennsylvania Dental Hygienists' Association (NPDHA) supported Stanski in her trip to the national convention and provided a monetary contribution which allowed her to attend several functions during the convention.
