Strath Haven has too much for Mounts

WEST CHESTER - A few years ago, the Dallas Mountaineers ran through the state Class AA playoffs to claim the school's only state championship. This year, as one of the smallest Class AAA schools in the playoffs, the Mountaineers went up against the cream of the crop, Strath Haven, and understandably lost. But not without a fight.

Dallas got its only score early in the second quarter, when Matt Douglas booted a 41-yard field goal. But Strath Haven quickly answered with a touchdown. Then, with less than a minute left in the half, Strath Haven blocked a Dallas punt and recovered on the Dallas eight-yard line, leading to another score. A touchdown in each of the last two quarters led to the 27-3 final score.

A punishing Panthers defense held the Mountaineers rushing game in check, but the teams were close in every other statistic. While Strath Haven pounded out 244 yards on the ground, Dallas had only 72. But Dallas had more passing yardage and 10 first downs to 12. Each team punted five times, but Dallas was called for 89 penalty yards.

Tailback Matt Jackson was the leading Dallas rusher with 60 yards. Quarterback Chuck Suppon was 9-for-17 for 92 yards with one interception. Jason Race was his favorite target, catching four passes for 45 yards.

Dallas ends the season 11-2, with a regular season loss to Nanticoke its only other blemish on the season.

Dallas defenders Nick Lopuhovsky (54), Joe Stuppino (68), Paul Wisnieski (77) and Brian Vetter (15) hauled down Strath Haven running star Mark Jones.

10 tips for making most of your trophy

Hunting is now underway and thousands of sportsmen are in search of that trophy of a lifetime. For those that have already bagged your deer, bear, or turkey, Congratulations! For those of you that haven't, here are some pointers to help protect your trophy from being damaged before it even reaches the taxidermist.

1. Once your game is down be sure to keep any field dressing incisions behind the brisket area. Any cutting past that point is totally unnecessary.
2. Avoid making large slits in the ears. Using a safety pin or wire tie will allow you use a much smaller hole than for a piece of string. Game Commission regulations state that a tag must be attached to the ear. However, a wire tie secured tightly around the base of the ear would be acceptable. But be careful that the tag doesn't slide off while getting the animal from the field to the butcher shop.
3. Keep unnecessary blood away from the hide that will be used for a mount. Once you field dress your animal, avoid handling the hide with bloody hands. Same goes for bear hides. Any excess blood should be wiped away with a cloth or leaves.
4. Avoid using water to clean the hide unless it can be dried and properly taken care of in a short time. Any fluids left on the hide (e.g. blood, water) can increase the development of bacteria and fungi and will decrease the amount of time before the hide will begin to spoil. Moisture will increase the reaction of enzymes that are in the hide and in turn begin to deteriorate it.
5. Keep as much of the animal off the ground as possible. If you ate
