

Scenes from the Wilkes-Barre Triathlon

Local athletes competed in one of the oldest continuous events in the United States when they ran, biked and swam in the 19th Wilkes-Barre Triathlon on Aug. 6. The event, hosted by Penn State Wilkes-Barre at Lehman, drew athletes who wanted to swim in Harvey's Lake and bike and run across hilly terrain in the Back Mountain area in the quest for a share of the $5,000 prize money.

In addition, a health and fitness expo was held in conjunction with the triathlon, featuring health, nutrition and fitness presentations, and a one-mile run was held for children ages 8 to 13.

First man out of the water was Corey Welch, a member of relay team AJJ, which also included Joseph Boyd and John Maskalis from Trucksville.

Megan, Doreen and Margo Johnson enjoy the triathlon under cover.

John Maskalis of Trucksville is the first runner to come through the gate.

Natalie Temperine gears up for the cycling portion of the race.
