Librarian's report

On Sept. 20 Martha Butler attended a Library District retreat at the Kirby Episcopal House in Mountaintop, where librarians put together their district plan and county funding proposal. The theme at the Pennsylvania Library Association Conference, which Martha attended on Sept. 23 and 24 in Lancaster, was Pennsylvania Libraries: Information, Innovation, Imagination. Discussion focused on the wealth of resources available today at Pennsylvania's libraries, as well as how libraries are responding to the ever-increasing need for excellent library service in a rapidly changing world. Over 800 registrants attended workshops, visited library ven-

DAIRYMEN CHARGED

Active borrowers top 13,000 dors, and networked with colleagues from around the state. The annual banquet featured Malachy McCourt, actor, storyteller and author of A Monk Swimming. Martha felt it was a great opportunity for her to learn from not just the speakers on the program, but from the many colleagues with whom she compared notes.

On Sept. 27, thirty 4-year-olds from Small Wonders Day Care Center visited the library. They toured the rooms, asked questions, and enjoyed stories in the Children's Room.

Statistics for September: total circulation, 6,310; books added, 181; new borrowers, 68; active borrowers, 13,211.

Annual Citrus Fruit Sale

The Friends of the Back Mountain Memorial Library announce that they willhold their annual citrus fruit sale again this year. Orders will be taken until Nov. 20, and the fruit will be available for pickup on Dec. 8 and 9. This fundraiser for the library has proved to be a popular one among both individuals and businesses in the Back Mountain area. Order forms and more details will be available in the near future. In the meantime, call the library at 675-1182 if you have any questions.

Book discussion groups

Pam Olivieri, of the Monday evening group, reported that those attending the September meeting "gave no high praises" for Red Tent, the assigned book. Their evaluation of the books discussed at their October 9 meeting will be given next time. Call Pam at 674-9935 if you are interested in joining the group.

Panama, by Eric Zency, was discussed by the Monday morning group at its first meeting of the fall season. The story, classified as a mystery, is based on the life of Henry Adams, 19th century historian, and grandson of one president of the United States and great-grandson of another. The book was one of the most challenging that the group has read.

Henry Adams was a complicated character; his pedantic analyses of just about everything he experienced were enjoyed by some and found annoying by others. A member commented that the book included mini-courses in history and politics, especially the scandalous attempt by the French to build the Panama Canal; sociol ogy, art, and, ah yes, a mystery. The average of the votes taken rated the book at 6.6 out of 10, with 7 being the mode and 7.5 the median (the latter statistics just for fun, a mini-course in statistics to fit the mood).

Other fund raisers (and great holiday gifts)

Prints of the painting which Sue Hand produced at this year's Auction are available in miniature (4" x 6") at the library. Attractively matted in a variety of colors, they are priced at $15 each.

The "Entertainment 2001" book is now available at the library desk for $25. It offers substantial discounts on entertainment and in many areas of everyday life.

Celebrity Luncheons to host journalist Helen Thomas

Celebrity Luncheons will host one of America's most widely known and distinguished journalists on Friday, October 27, at the Woodlands Inn in Wilkes-Barre. Helen Thomas has reported the activities of six presidents and first ladies since 1960, longer than any journalist today.

United Press International's (UPI) White House bureau chief and the dean of White House correspondence, Thomas joined UPI's Washington bureau in 1943 as a radio writer after working as a reporter for the now defunct Washington, D.C. Daily News. Thomas transferred to UPI's national staff in 1965, covering the Justice Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She covered the then-presidentelect John F. Kennedy in November 1960 and joined the White House staff in January 1961. She became the first woman to close a presidential news conference with the traditional "Thank you, Mr. President", which she has continued to use for 23 years. In 1974, Thomas became the first woman in charge of a wire service White House bureau.

50 Years Ago - Oct. 13, 1950 DALLAS POST OFFICE TOO SMALL

The present Dallas Post Office was unsatisfactory for its 1,500 patrons and its 11 postal employees who served them. The 920 square feet of floor space was once adequate in the days when two clerks could quickly sort through the small cart of mail that was brought over twice a day from the Lehigh Valley station, but it had not been able to meet the demands that were now needed. Narrow aisles, poor lighting, inadequate storage space and employee's work. During the holidays and over busy periods, it was almost impossible for employees to go from one end of the room to the other. Throughout the years, many postmasters had attempted to remedy the situation by urging the Government to construct its own post office building in the town, to no avail.

A small shed covering an old well on Machell Avenue was demolished by flames. 15 members of the Dr. Henry M. A spokesman for the fire company noted that neighborhood children had been using the structure as a bunkhouse and surmised that the fire could have been caused by them.
