Plunging into college life

Though I often postulate about the transition between high school and college life, a few weeks ago I had the opportunity to experience it firsthand. Having recently been accepted to King's College, I was able to attend Campus Plunge, a program designed especially for incoming freshmen. Students spend the night on campus, getting acquainted with future classmates. Activities including poetry readings, plays and sporting events make for a unique experience.

Each "plunge" (high-school senior) is assigned a host, a college freshman to guide them through the world of academe. Learning that I was in fact a full month older than my host added humor to a situation that could have been rather nerve-racking. She was courteous and kind, affording me an accurate view of life beyond these narrow hallways.

A scanty sleeper myself, I was nonetheless surprised by the typical college student's marginal resting habits. Tired but no less enthused, the next day I sat in on classes catered to my major, which will be English. I felt a combined sense of awe and belonging while listening to the professors' lecturing. I thought of mentors, present and future. Mrs. Sandra Weyman, my teacher, adviser and friend now, is the epitome of everything an English teacher should be, garnering respect with her skill and amicable nature. Dr. James Wallace, Chairman of the English department at King's, is someone I hold in the highest regard. Having taken classes from him before, I am optimistic for what lies ahead.

Though I am all too eager to move on, I constantly remind myself to enjoy my life as it is right now. These past four years have indeed flown; the only advice I can give to anyone, young or old, is to enjoy it while it lasts. Happiness isn't found in preachy morals or the prospect of newfound freedom, however. It is found in the here and now.

DHS GRAD 2001 Community Pancake Breakfast

The DHS Grad 2001 committee is busy making plans to host their 2nd annual Community Pancake Breakfast, Saturday March 3 from 8 a.m.-11 a.m. at Dallas High School cafeteria. Big apple Bagels of Dallas will be donating a bagel basket to be given as a door prize. Tickets are $5 adult, $3 child and can be purchased at the door or by contacting Pancake Breakfast Co-Chair Carol VanStory at 674-3181. This event is one of many fund raisers being organized to help defray the costs of the all-night drug-free alcohol-free lock-in party being planned for the evening of graduation for the Dallas High School Class of 2001. From left: Vivian Bednarz; Trudy Matley, DHS Grad 2001 Co-Chair; Frank Galicki, DHS Principal; Paul Reinert, DHS Asst. Principal; Joyce Gebhardt, Pancake Breakfast Co-Chair; Carol VanStory, Pancake Breakfast Co-Chair and Debbie Katyl.

Shah selected for D.C. program

Neil Shah, Shavertown, a senior at Wyoming Seminary, will be among 104 top students who spend a week March 3 through 12, in the nation's capital. He will see Congress in action and visit the Capitol, the White House, Supreme Court, State Department, Library of Congress and the Pentagon. Witnessing the national government first hand, he will have many opportunities to hear and talk with its leaders.

As well as the all-expense-paid trip to Washington, each student will receive a $2,000 college scholarship for undergraduate studies. The program was enacted in 1962 by Senate Resolution 324 to bring two students from each state, the District of Columbia and the Department of Defense Dependents Schools Overseas, to Washington for a week of intensive study of the government. Students must be involved in their student government. Students must be involved in their student government to qualify, and are selected by their chief state school officer.

Shouldn't your advertising be, too?

Love him or hate him, Tip O'Neill knew one thing - when the votes are counted, it doesn't matter what people who live outside your district think about you. That's as true in the Back Mountain as it is in Back Bay, so if you're planning campaign advertising for a local office, put it where it will count the most...in The Dallas Post.

The Dallas Post is all local, all the time. Our readers are among the most influential and active in the region, so getting their vote might mean getting even more - their influence with friends and neighbors. Sure, the city papers can claim more circulation, but what good does it do if the readers live in Wilkes-Barre, Pittston or Mountaintop? Not a bit.

Put your advertising where the votes are - in The Dallas Post. Call today for low rates and other information.
