Students learn from quilting project

For the past two years students at the Lake-Noxen Elementary School have been involved in very unique class projects. The students have learned the time honored tradition of quilting.

The idea for the project was hatched during a math class when a quilt block was used to illustrate a fraction. The students were given the assignment of creating a block of their own out of paper.

It was then decided the students would make an actual quilt for the entire school to use as a learning tool. The children made the 'Patches of Fractions' quilt by designing, attaching and labeling the blocks for the quilt. The quilt earned a blue ribbon and rosette at the Luzerne County Fair last fall.

"Our first experience was such a success that this year we expanded our participation to any of the sixth graders who were interested in learning to quilt," said

Mrs. Chocallo, teacher associate. This year the students turned donated materials from Ames into beautiful lap throws for the residence of Fernwood Manor in Sweet Valley. Third and fourth grade students also made canvas tissue box covers and two lap throws.

The students learned many different skills from operating a sewing machine to hand quilting to canvas needlework. "It is wonderful to see the interest and skill that our 'Warm Lap Project' has generated in these children," said Mrs. Chocallo, Mrs. Welter and Mrs. Bauers, project advisors.
