

Community Photo Album

About 80 walkers participated in the Cystic Fibrosis Great Strides: Walk for a Cure on Saturday at Francis Slocum State Park. Walkers raised over $12,000 for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation (CFF) research. About 75 students in the Builders Club at Lake-Lehman Middle School also raised money to help support CFF.

The students raised over $1,600 through penny wars and a student computer match fund raisers. Cystic fibrosis is a genetic disease affecting approximately 30,000 children and adults in the United States. For more information log onto www.cff.org or call the CCF at 1-800-552-2199.

POST PHOTOS/JIM PHILLIPS

A good cause, great weather and wonderful friends, what more could Brittany Latona, Danielle Bryden and Nicole Bellanco ask for on a Saturday morning.

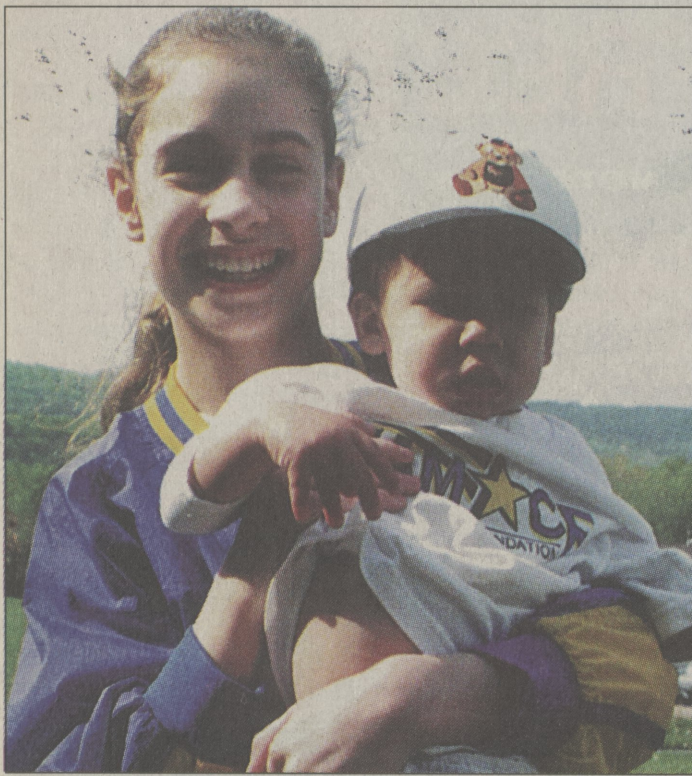

Darleen Tomayko and Bernice Sando enjoy Saturday's beautiful weather during the Cystic Fibrosis Great Strides Walk at Francis Slocum State Park.

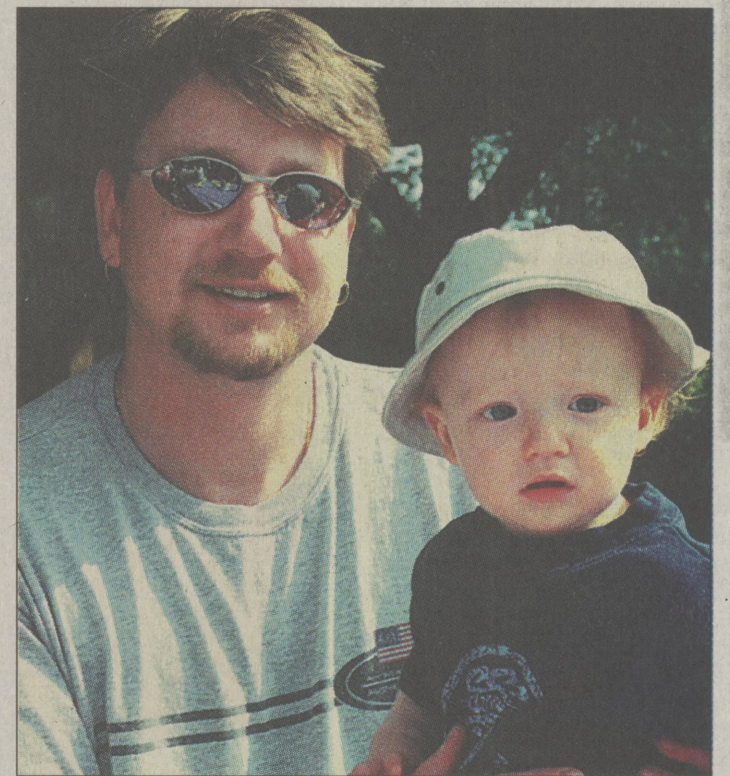

Valerie Calkins' enjoys the company of the Old Country Buffet Bee while Jacob Calkins relaxes in her arms.

Raising money for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation puts a smile on the faces of Corrine Nevel and Emily Pocono.

Sunshine and fun were part of Deidre Davis and Nicholas Matcho day out.

It was boys day out for John and Vincent Sando.

Local residents join tens of thousands of people across the country in the Great Strides: A Walk to Cure Cystic Fibrosis.

Walkers get a full work out at the Cystic Fibrosis Great Strides Walk.