Neil Shah named one of USA's top students

In the May 17 issue of USA Today, the All-USA High School Academic Team was announced.

The USA Today's 15th annual rating for the All-USA High School Academic Team is open to all graduating high school students in the United States based on extraordinary academic and extra-curricular achievement.

NEIL SHAH

Neil 'Buddy' Shah was selected to the third team, placing him as one of the nation's top 60 students. Buddy has earned numerous local and national academic, leadership, and athletic awards throughout his high school career.

He was named a Senate Youth Scholarship Winner as one of two students from Pennsylvania in week-long program in Washington, D.C. where he (along with two student representatives from each of the 50 states) met with many leading senators, as well as President Bush.

Other recent accomplishments include being named a National Merit Scholarship winner, Times Leader Best and Brightest Mathematics winner, as well as winning the Killer Bee Student Athlete of the Year, Government Leadership Prize, and the Student for Peace Award presented by the Peace Center.

He served as President of Wyoming Seminary Government, president of the International Club, head delegate of the Model UN, co-editor of the school newspaper, and captain and number one player for the State champion tennis team.

Buddy will be studying political science and biochemistry at Harvard in the fall. He is son of Dr. Naresh and Mrudula Shah, Shavertown.

Students receive fitness awards

Seven Back Mountain Wilkes-Barre Academy students completed the President's Physical Fitness and Sports Program, winning the National Physical Fitness Award.

Back Mountain National Physical Fitness Award winners are: Andrew Nakkache, second grade, Shavertown; Nick Nakkache, sixth grade, Shavertown; Megan Daris, sixth grade, Dallas; Ed Daris, seventh grade, Dallas; Cassie Tirpak, third grade, Shavertown; Daniel Elbich, sixth grade, Dallas; and Lauren Hardisky, seventh grade, Shavertown.

DAREing to graduate

Graduation ceremonies were held recently for the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) fifth grade class at Gate of Heaven School in Dallas. Frank Ziegler, Kingston Twp. DARE officer and Police Chief James Balavage spoke to the students, and Ziegler handed out certificates signifying their achievement.
