Misericordia to host Shakespeare symposium

College Misericordia will host a free Shakespearean theatre symposium Wed., Jul. 11 at 7 p.m. in the Cougar's Den of the Banks Student Center on campus. The annual Dr. Regina Kelly Shakespeare Symposium will focus this year on "Spying Around the Globe": Shakespeare's fascination with spying in the context of the Elizabethan and Jacobean secret services.

The two featured speakers are Dr. Scott Blanchard and Dr. Rebecca Steinberger both members of the faculty at College Misericordia. Refreshments will follow, and all members of the community are invited to attend.

The symposium helps to kick-off College Misericordia's 14th annual Theatre on the Green; this year the National Players will perform "Much Ado About Nothing" in the First Union Amphitheater at College Misericordia, July 12-15. For more info call the Cultural Events office at 674-6719.

Dallas UMC to produce drama

"David, the Singing Shepherd Boy," a lively worship drama, will be presented at Dallas United Methodist Church Aug. 5 at 6:30 p.m.

The production requires many actors, singers, readers, instrumentalists, scenery painters, make-up artists, and costume producers. All the workers will be busy at the church the previous week from Sun., July 29, from 5:30-8:30 p.m. and the same hours for the next four evenings. Supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. each evening, and the whole family is invited. There will be no cost, but the leaders need to know who is coming. Everyone is welcome to come work on some part of the show. The production team does need a count. Call the Shumways, 639-2719, or Debbie Blockus 696-2719.

There will be a special nursery room for preschool. All other ages will be working in teams on the drama. Effort could be called Bible School because everyone will learn some Bible verses and stories. But it will be different than previous Bible Schools in style and results.
