There have been close calls in the past. "My buddy missed him three years ago," said the younger Ogurkis, who waited as the buck worked his way in from 50 yards to only about 15 yards before lying down.

Shooting the buck was only the beginning; it took an hour and a half to track him down, as he made his way into a high-grass swamp near the Ogurkis home. "I had extra batteries with me for the flashlight," Ogurkis

Jr. said, since he didn't want to let this big one get away.

The deer's head and 14-point rack, measuring 24 inches wide, will be mounted, after the venison is made up into steaks, kielbasa and winter sausage.
