yards from the nearest road. Lipski was hunting on one of the 12 elk management areas in the western part of the state. Unfamiliar with the territory, he contracted with Decker, a former Game Commission employee, at $100 a day, a bargain compared to some guides who were charging up to $550 a day with a three-day minimum.

The hunters and guides were required to attend a half-day information session Nov. 11, at which Game Commission personnel carefully described the rules of the hunt, emphasizing that they preferred only adult animals be taken.

Lipski and four other hunters were in Elk County; he took his in the woods around Bradford elk in the Johnson Run area of Benezette Township at 4:50 p.m., 10 minutes before the close of the hunting day. By week's end, the other four hunters had also been successful

"If it was a deer, a hit would have knocked it over."

Frank Lipski Jackson Twp.

The 27 successful hunters took 14 bulls and 13 cows out of a herd estimated at nearly 700. Lipski said the largest buck was taken with a bow. In the past year, 30 elk have been taken illegally and another 31 have been killed by farmers claiming crop devastation.

Back home, Lipski spent Monday and Tuesday chasing deer County. "I passed on a small doe Monday, and that was the only one I saw," he said.

But it didn't seem to matter when he thought about the elk steaks and stew he would enjoy all winter.
