Dr. Anthony Mussari filmed at Ground Zero in New York for the first new episode of "Windsor Park Stories."

'Windsor Park Stories' begins its fifth season on WVIA

Windsor Park Stories, the documentary series produced by King's College faculty members Dr. Anthony Mussari, department chairman of mass communications/media technologies, and his wife, Kitch Loftus-Mussari, mass communications/media technologies instructor, will begin its fifth season on WVIA-TV with a one-hour preview airing Saturday, Jan. 19, at 10 p.m. The new season will begin Sunday, Jan. 20 at 7 p.m. with an episode entitled, "What is America?" Much of the footage was shot at Ground Zero for this piece on the ways in which America embodies freedom, family, gratitude, and opportunity. Dr. Mussari first conceived of the idea after attending a memorial service for Leonard Snyder, Jr., a King's graduate and Wilkes-Barre native who died in the Sept. 11 tragedy.

The series will continue Sundays at 7 p.m., profiling local people as well as several stories based in Cape May, N.J. This year there will be 29 new episodes, more than double the number the Mussaris produced during the first year of the series. The 100th episode of "Windsor Park Stories" will air Sunday, Aug. 11. Windsor Park is the name of an elaborate garden the Mussaris built adjacent to their Dallas home. Many of the episodes over the past five years have been taped in the garden. "Our stories focus on inspirational individuals with motivational stories, people who are genuine role models," says Dr. Mussari. "This was the premise of the show when we began the series five years ago, and it remains the essence of Windsor Park Stories."
