Northeast Regional Cancer Institute
CANCER BASICS
Q: Does spirituality have an effect on our ability to cope with serious illness?
A: According to Mary Helen Nugent, RSM, certified professional counselor and spiritual director of the Mercy Consultation Center, Dallas, spirituality affects how we interpret illness in our lives. Spirituality gives us hope. A sense of meaning, purpose, and connection beyond ourselves can help us cope with the illness and stress that accompanies it. Spirituality won't necessarily eliminate stress or anxiety, but it can help us move through it - to get to the other side.
